PRESIDENT MASON

It is but three years since the University of Chicago, inspired by the vision and courage of President Burton, initiated a program of development. All groups of the University family joined in the effort with energy and unity. Today we are happy in the ground we have already gained, and determined that a program of development shall continue as long as the University endures.

Our program is not for expansion of activity, but for continually increased perfection of performance. The physical equipment of the University is being rapidly improved as our new buildings are being completed. Next year will soon see work commenced on new buildings for botany, chemistry, mathematics, and the social sciences.

Of far greater importance is the stimulation and improvement in the University's work made possible by the increased endowment.

The keynote of our University is scholarship with a purpose. It is my abmition to see the undergraduates full partners in this enterprise. I believe that we can evolve, by common effort, a distinctive undergraduate college at Chicago,—a college of opportunity, in which American youth, while enjoying those valuable and picturesque activities which lend color to American college life, may find romance and adventure that lie in the independent effort in the life of the intellect.

Max Mason

NEW ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICERS

WOODWARD STEVENS STEERE

Frederic C. Woodward, Vice-President and Dean of Faculties, was a Professor of Law in the University of Chicago when he took over his present duties in April, 1926. He came to the University in 1916 from Leland Stanford Junior University, where he had served as Dean of the Law School for several years.

David H. Stevens, Assistant to the President, was a Professor of English before beginning his present work in October, 1926. He received his degree of Doctor of Philosophy from the University of Chicago and has been on the teaching staff since 1912.

Lloyd R. Steere, Vice-President and Business Manager, entered the service of the University of Chicago in his present office in May, 1926. He is a graduate of Harvard College and took his legal course in the Harvard Law School. His experience in banking and as an officer of the Dering Estates afforded the background for his present responsible position.

THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Swift

During the year 1926 the Board of Trustees secured the amendment of the Articles of Incorporation of the University increasing the number of Trustees from twenty-five to thirty. This increase was required in order to distribute more widely the multiplying duties which devolve upon the Trustees and by the desire to strengthen the University's hold upon the intelligence and worth of the community in which it is placed.

The following persons constitute the Board of Trustees, grouped into three classes:

Term expires 1927—Trevor Arnett, William Scott Bond, J. Spencer Dickerson, Charles W. Gilkey, Howard G. Grey, Charles R. Holden, Robert P. Lamont, Frank McNair, John Stuart.

Term expires 1928—Sewell L. Avery, Harrison B. Bernard, Eli B. Felsenthal, Samuel C. Jennings, Frank H. Lindsay, Harold F. McCormick, Max Mason, Julius Rosenwald, Martin A. Ryerson, Harold H. Swift.

Term expires 1929—Charles F. Axelson, Thomas E. Donnelly, Charles E. Hughes, Harry B. Gear, Wilber E. Post, Edward L. Ryerson Jr., Robert L. Scott, Albert W. Sherer, Deloss C. Shull, Eugene M. Stevens.

Two members of the Board have served from the beginning: Mr. Eli B. Felsenthal and Mr. Martin A. Ryerson. The latter was elected president of the Board in 1892 and most successfully presided over its deliberations and guided its policies until 1922. Of the sixty-eight trustees who have been members of the Board since 1890, besides the two already mentioned, seven have served for 15 years or more.

The Board of Trustees is a practically continuous, co-operating and harmonious group. Familiarity with the affairs of the University obtained through years of intimate relationship to its administration counts for consistency of policy and procedure. Standing committees bring members into co-operation with the affairs of the University, although in strictly educational matters the Trustees have not attempted to interfere. The President of the University "shall be the head of all educational departments," say the by-laws. There have been among the trustees no cliques, no disagreements. Negative votes are seldom heard.

The officers of the Board are the following:

Harold H. Swift, President; Howard G. Grey, First Vice-President; Thomas E. Donnelly, Second Vice-President; Robert L. Scott, Third Vice-President; John F. Moulds, Secretary of the Board; J. Spencer Dickerson, Corresponding Secretary; Rowland Haynes, Secretary of the University; Thomas Wakefield Goodspeed, Historian; Lloyd R. Steere, Vice-President and Business Manager; George O. Fairweather, Assistant Business Manager; Nathan C. Plimpton, Auditor; William B. Harrell, Assistant Auditor.

THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Moulds

Mr. Swift was elected a Trustee in 1914 and succeeded Mr. Ryerson as President of the Board in 1922. He is an alumnus of the University having been graduated in 1907. He brings to his important service knowledge of the University from the inside; enthusiastic belief in the mission and future growth of his Alma Mater; and tireless service in her behalf. On February 10, 1927, the Trustees elected Mr. John F. Moulds, Secretary of the Board, succeeding Mr. J. Spencer Dickerson, who just prior to that date had been elected Corresponding Secretary. Mr. Moulds, also an alumnus and of the Class of 1907, has had experience as University Cashier and Assistant Secretary which well fitted him for the new position to which he has been promoted.

The Board of Trustees is the corporation formed according to the articles of incorporation, "to provide, impart, and furnish opportunities for all departments of higher education to persons of both sexes on equal terms; . . . . . to establish and maintain a university, in which may be taught all branches of higher learning, and which may comprise and embrace separate departments for literature, law, medicine, music, technology, the various branches of science, both abstract and applied, the cultivation of the fine arts, and all other branches of professional or technical education which may properly be included with the purposes and objects of a university; . . . . . to receive, hold, invest, and disburse all moneys and property, or the income thereof, which may be invested or intrusted to care of said corporation, whether by gift, grant, bequest, devise, or otherwise, for educational purposes; . . . . . and generally to pursue and promote all or any of the objects above named, and to do all and every of the things necessary or pertaining to the accomplishment of said objects or either of them."

The Trustees have under their control the endowments and the physical property of the University estimated to be worth $70,000,000 or more. The University owns a considerable amount of real-estate within the "Loop", income from the buildings thereon, or from leaseholds, providing a stable portion of income for the annual budget which for the current year amounts approximately to $4,500,000. Investments in securities, as well as in real-estate, must receive the constant supervision of the Trustees. The buildings used for educational purposes within the "quadrangles" which are gradually extending beyond the four city blocks originally so-called, have been erected under the supervision of the Board. How important this supervision is may be realized when it is known that in the January, 1927, issue of the University Record it was stated that fully $9,000,000 recently had been appropriated for new buildings, including the medical group, the University Chapel, Swift Hall, the Joseph Bond Chapel, and Wieboldt Hall.

COLLEGE MARSHALS AND AIDES

Apitz Hall Smith
Howe Bennett Price
Burg Quin Webster Sackett

The College Marshals and Aides are appointed annually by the President of the University on the basis of scholastic attainment and prominence in campus activities from recommendations of the present Marshals and Aides. They serve throughout their Senior year as assistants to the University Marshal in the conduct of Convocations and other ceremonial functions of the quadrangles. Each year the President, in making his selection, designates one of the men chosen as the head marshal, to supervise the work of the entire group; and the retiring members choose one woman for the unofficial post of chief aide to take general charge of the work of the aides. During its term of service the average group of Marshalls and Aides officiates at six Convocation ceremonies, an equal number of Convocation religious services, and at numerous receptions of various natures.

THE DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

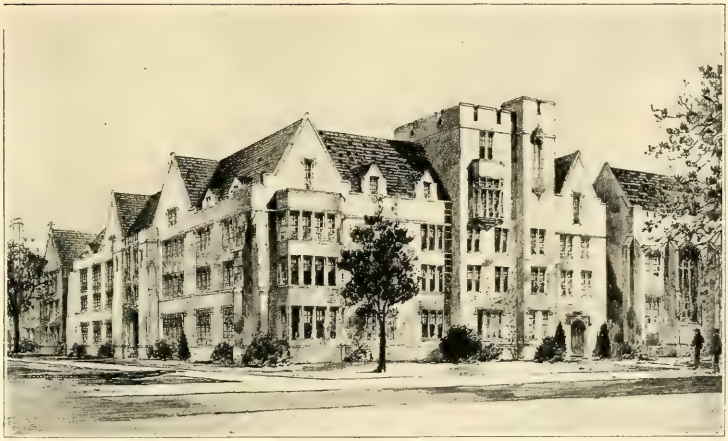

Jones Chemistry Laboratory

The plans for the campus development laid by the University of Chicago during the recent Development Campaign have undergone rapid materialization during the year 1926-27.

Wieboldt Hall, the first building given in the new development plan of the University, is now nearing completion. The funds amounting to $500,000 were given in the Spring of 1925 and the cornerstone was laid on Dec. 14, 1926. Wieboldt Hall, filling the gap in the Quadrangles between Harper Library and the Classics Building, is to perform the same function for the modern languages that the Classics Building does for the classics. It will contain the classrooms, offices, and libraries of the modern language departments. It is hoped that funds will be given for a Social Science Building to occupy a similar position on the east side of Harper. This building, like Wieboldt Hall and Classics would have its own library; and thus the department of law, languages, and social sciences would be linked up with each other and with the greater library facilities of the University.

The Joseph Bond Chapel, north of Wieboldt Hall, was dedicated on October 21, 1926. This building is connected by cloisters to Swift Hall on the northeast. Swift Hall is now being used by the Divinity School; and the quarters of the latter in Haskell have been turned over to the Oriental Institute and the Museum of Egyptology.

THE DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

Mathematics Group

The University Chapel, the cornerstone of which was laid on June 11, 1926, is now under construction. Mr. Rockefeller, when he made his final gift of $10,000,000 to the University, specified that this chapel should be built. The University chapel, which will cost about $750,000, is to be the dominating feature of the completed campus. Future plans, it is hoped, may include the erection of an Art Building, connected with the Chapel by elaborate cloisters, on the same block.

The buildings of the Medical group are also going up rapidly. The Physiological Chemistry Building has been in use for several months; and the Albert Merritt Billings Hospital, which is nearly completed, will probably be opened in the late spring.

These buildings, for which the funds were contributed by the educational foundations and by friends of the University, are part of a large medical group, constituting an integral part of the University, which will include also the Max Epstein Dispensary, the Frank Billings Medical Clinic, the Departments of Surgery, Medicine, and Pathology, and the Departments of Physiology, Physiological Chemistry, and Pharmacology. This whole medical project is a crystallization of the idea that Oxford, England, and the University of Chicago were the places for the development of a great new medical school.

THE DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

Administration Building

The advantage of the fostering of this project by the University of Chicago, as pointed out by a leading authority on medical education, is that here the basic sciences, the preclinical schools, and the hospitals will form a single physical unit, thus making possible a further interlinking of the various departments which have a hand in making doctors and medical research workers. It is probably one of the biggest ideas of recent years for future development in medicine, and especially in medical research.

The Whitman Laboratory of Experimental Zoology was dedicated in June 1926. This building, costing $100,000, was the gift of Professor and Mrs. Frank R. Lillie.

A new chemistry building, the Jones Laboratory, for which Mr. George Herbert Jones gave $415,000 in the Autumn of 1926, is to be erected in the near future on the ground west of Kent. This building will relieve the overcrowded conditions now prevailing in the chemistry laboratories by taking care of all graduate and research work, and leaving Kent for the undergraduate teaching. The Jones Laboratory is the first unit of a large chemistry program.

Proposed buildings, for which funds are being sought, include buildings for Social Service, Mathematics, Administration, Art, a High School, and a building for the Graduate School in Education.

THE ALUMNI COUNCIL OF THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO

HERBERT P. ZIMMERMANN, '01, Chairman

ALLEN HEALD, '26, Acting Secretary

The Council for 1926-27 is composed of the following Delegates:

From the College Alumni Association; Term expires 1927: Frank McNair, '03; Leo. F. Wormser '04; Earl D. Hostetter, '07; Arthur A. Goes, '08; Harry R. Swanson, '17; Lillian Richards, '19; Term expires 1928: John P. Mentzer, '98; Clarence W. Sills, ex-'05; Hugo M. Friend, '06, J.D. '08; Harold H. Swift, '07; Mrs. Phyllis Fay Horton, '15; Barbara Miller, '18; Term expires 1929: Elizabeth Faulkner, '85; Harry N. Gottlieb, '00; Herbert P. Zimmerman, '01; Paul H. Davis, '11; William H. Kuh, '11; Mrs. Marguerite H. MacDaniel, '17.

From the Association of Docotrs of Philosophy: A. W. Moore, Ph.D., '98; Herbert E. Slaught, Ph.D., '98; D. H. Stevens, Ph.D., '14; D. J. Fisher, Ph.D., '22.

From the Divinity Alumni Association: E. J. Goodspeed, D.B., '97, Ph.D., '98; P. J. Stackhouse, D.B., '04; W. D. Whan, A.M., '09, D.B., '10.

From the Law School Alumni Association: Urban A. Lavery, J.D., '10; Charles F. McElroy, A.M., '06, J.D., '15; Harold W. Norman, '19, J.D., '20.

From the School of Education Alumni Association: Mrs. Scott V. Eaton, '09, A.M., '13; William C. Reavis, A.M., '11, Ph.D., '25; Logan M. Anderson, A.M., '23.

From the Commerce and Administration Alumni Association: Frank E. Weakly, '14; Donald P. Dean, '17; John A. Logan, '21.

From the Rush Medical College Alumni Association: Ralph C. Brown, '01, M.D., '03; George H. Coleman, '11, M.D., '13; Frederick B. Moorehead, M.D., '06.

From the Chicago Alumni Club: William H. Lyman, '14; Sam A. Rothermel, '17; Roderick MacPherson, ex-'16.

From the Chicago Alumnae Club: Grace A. Coulter, '99; Helen Canfield Wells, '24; Mrs. V. M. Huntington, '13.

From the University: Henry Gordon Gale, '96, Ph.D., '99.

Alumni Associations Represented in the Alumni Council

The College Alumni Association: President, Herbert P. Zimmerman, '01, 731 Plymouth Ct., Chicago; Secretary, W. Robert Jenkins, '24, University of Chicago.

Association of Doctors of Philosophy: President, A. W. Moore, Ph.D., '98, University of Chicago; Secretary, Herbert E. Slaught, Ph.D., '98, University of Chicago.

Divinity Alumni Association: President, Mark Sanborn, First Baptist Church, Detroit, Mich.; Secretary, R. B. Davidson, D.B., '97, First Baptist Church, Ames, Iowa.

Law School Association: President, Urban A. Lavery, J.D., '10, 76 W. Monroe St., Chicago; Secretary, Charles F. McElroy, A.M., '06, J.D., '15, 1609 Westminister Bldg., Chicago.

School of Education Alumni Association: President, W. C. Reavis, Ph.D., '25, University of Chicago; Secretary, Mrs. R. W. Bixler, A.M., '25, University of Chicago.

Commerce and Administration Alumni Association: President, John A. Logan, '21, 231 S. La Salle St., Chicago; Secretary, Cline F. Slaughter, '25, Cuadrangle Club, University of Chicago.

Rush Medical College Alumni Association: President, Nathan P. Colwell, M.D., '00, 535 No. Dearborn St., Chicago; Secretary, Charles A. Parker, M.D., '91, 7 W. Madison St., Chicago.

ALUMNI

TIMMERMAN

A committee of Alumni and members of the Faculty began work last spring with this major premise: "The Alumni are to be recognized as a part of the University body. They comprize a group to be cultivated and a new force to be properly directed toward strengthening and advancing the University."

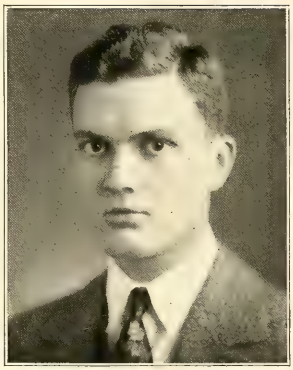

With this assumption the committee set to work. The program which it adopted for strengthening the connections of Alumni with their Alma Mater provides for more than a dozen lines of approach to the problem. For one thing, it includes a more intensive use of machinery already set up: adaptation and wider circulation of The University of Chicago Magazine; a fuller and more interesting program for Reunion and Homecoming; co-operation in the development of Alumni clubs; extension of the records of the Alumni; an organized plan for the reception of visiting Alumni, with opportunities for attending classes, seeing new buildings, and chatting with favorite faculty members; radio programs planned especially for the Alumni.

The program includes frequent communications—booklets, letters from the President or favorite deans or professors—giving the Alumni information about the University. It provides for visits by professors to Alumni clubs and individual Alumni throughout the country.

The University accepted the proposal, and created a committee of the Faculty, called the Board of Alumni Relations, to carry out the University's share of the work, in co-operation with the Alumni Council. Dean Emery T. Filbey was released last Fall from his teaching duties for one year to take charge of the work of this Board.

A certain professor, let us say, plans to do a piece of research work in Memphis, Tennessee. He is an authority in political science; his studies in the machinery of city government have attracted wide attention. He can tell a story about the University's work in this field that will interest anybody who is awake to the day's problems. Dean Filbey, in touch with all departments and schools of the University, learns of this professor's contemplated trip.

ALUMNI

HEALD

In Memphis is a club of Chicago Alumni. They are interested in what happens at the University, and alive to problems of general import. Mr. Paul H. Davis, head of the Clubs Committee of the Alumni Council, by constant personal correspondence with a leading member of this club, knows its interests, the nature of its personnel, and its dates of meeting.

Alumni Council and Board of Alumni Relations exchange information; the Alumni Secretary notifies the Memphis Club of the professor's trip; the Club arranges a meeting and invites the professor. Other clubs along the road to Memphis may make similar arrangements.

Some clubs are more remote than Memphis, and not so likely to be visited in the course of the professor's business. The Board will plan tours to these at regular intervals by certain selected professors.

What discoveries the Board of Alumni Relations and the Alumni Council make in this beginning of their work together, they will apply as they extend this work into other parts of the unifying program.

The President's office, with the benefit of the experience already gained, has mailed to all Alumni and former students a news letter, in which Mr. John Dollard, Assistant to the President, has collected interesting facts about the activity of every department—from studies of the geography of Chicago to investigations of the causes of suicide. In the spring, the departments will combine, under the guidance of the Alumni and Dean Filbey's Board, to add something new to the Reunion program: a University open-house. Returning Alumni will have an opportunity never given them at previous Reunions to tour the Quadrangles and see the work of the University on display. Laboratories, the new hospitals, precious relics in the Haskell Museum, photographs of Chaucer manuscripts, etc., will be on hand for inspection. Favorite professors will be in their offices, with plenty of cigars on hand, to greet old friends. The more serious phase of University life will have a greater share than before in the Reunion program.

By such a general method as this, the University proposes to achieve a new degree of co-operation, and to direct "a new force toward strengthening and advancing the University."

In the group of colleges organized around the central hub of the administration is found the undergraduate realm of the University of Chicago. Cobb Hall, the first building erected upon the campus, probably symbolizes most effectually the ideas, the traditions, and the associations connected with undergraduate classes. For practically every student has, at some time between his matriculation and graduation, had at least one class "in Cobb", and has stood in the chattering crowd "in front of Cobb" between morning sessions. The system and personnel of the administration which guide the undergraduate schools, are indeed the unifying element which they are intended to be, and are worthy of the highest comment for their excellence and efficiency.

UNDERGRADUATE SCHOOLS

ADMINISTRATION

ARTS, LITERATURE AND SCIENCE

BOUCHER

The staff of deans of the University of Chicago consists at the present time, in addition to graduate deans and several professional deans, of six men and four women cooperating with the dean of the colleges and his associate. This system was put into operation in the Autumn of 1924. Before that time there had been, roughly speaking, five deans for an undergraduate body of 2500 students. It was realized that the individual contact of the students with their faculty adviser, which is one of the strongest points in favor of the small college, could not be obtained with an administrative staff so small in proportion to the student body. In an effort to better conditions, the staff of deans was doubled: and an attempt was made to have each student assigned to the same dean throughout his college course. The result of the adoption of this plan has been that the deans are now able to be of more help to the students in solving both academic and human problems, and that there is a much closer approach to the ideal in the relationship of the students and faculty than was possible with the old form of organization.

Chauncey S. Boucher is the Dean of the Colleges of Arts, Literature, and Science. He received his A.B., A.M., and Ph.D. degrees at the University of Michigan. He did part of his graduate work at Harvard and then returned to Michigan as an instructor in history. Later he taught at Washington University, Ohio State University, the University of Texas, and the University of Wisconsin. He came to the University of Chicago as Professor of American History in 1923, and became a dean in the colleges in 1925. Mr. Boucher was made dean of the colleges when Ernest Hatch Wilkins resigned in 1926.

Thomas Vernor Smith is Associate Dean of the Colleges. He received his A.B. and A.M. degrees at the University of Texas; and, after teaching philosophy and English at Texas Christian University, he returned to the University of Texas as an instructor in philosophy. He received his Ph.D. degree at the University of Chicago in 1922, and became an instructor and later an assistant professor in philosophy. He has been a dean in the colleges since 1923, and was made assistant dean of the colleges when Mr. Boucher went into office.

Merle C. Coulter is an assistant professor of botany. He received his S.B. here in 1914; after spending three years at Williams College he returned to the University of Chicago where he later received his Ph.D. degree. He became a dean in the colleges in 1926.

T. V. Smith

Walter L. Dorn is an instructor in history. He received his Ph.D. here after teaching Latin at Concordia College, Ft. Wayne, Indiana.

Miss Frances E. Gillespie is also an instructor in history. She received her A.B. degree at George Washington University and her A.M. and Ph.D. degrees at the University of Chicago.

William E. Glattfeld received his S.B. and S.M. degrees at Dartmouth where he was instructor in chemistry for a year. After receiving his Ph.D. at the University of Chicago he became an instructor here and later an assistant professor. He became a dean in the colleges in 1923. During the Winter Quarter of 1927 Mr. Glattfield's place was taken by W. A. Noyes, assistant professor of chemistry.

Forrest A. Kingsbury is an associate professor of psychology. He received his Ph.B. at Central in 1909, and his A.M. at Yale. He has taught at Ottawa University, and at the University of Chicago since 1920, when he received his Ph.D. degree. Mr. Kingsbury has been a dean since 1924.

Mrs. Adeline de Sale Link graduated from Vassar. After receiving her Ph.D. at the University of Chicago, she taught at Lawrence. She is now an instructor in chemistry, and has been a dean since 1925. During the Spring Quarter of 1927, Mrs. Link's place was taken by Miss S. P. Breckinridge.

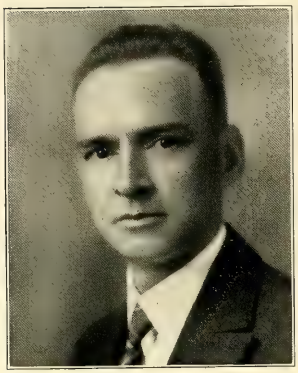

Mrs. Mayme I. Logsdon is an assistant professor of mathematics. After receiving her S.B. and A.M. degrees at the University of Chicago, she taught at Hastings College, where she was dean of the women. Later she taught at Northwestern University; she then came to the University of Chicago to get her Ph.D. degree. She became a dean in 1923.

Paul MacClintock has been a dean since 1925. He received his S.B. and Ph.D. degrees at the University of Chicago and is now an assistant professor of geology.

Miss Hilda L. Norman is an instructor in romance languages, who received her A.B. degree at the University of Texas. She came to the University of Chicago in 1923 to get her Ph.D. She has been a dean since 1926.

Eyler Newton Simpson taught economics at the University of Texas before coming to the University of Chicago. He received his A.M. and Ph.D. degrees here and is now an instructor in sociology.

THE SCHOOL OF COMMERCE AND ADMINISTRATION

SPENCER

The School of Commerce and Administration is one of the professional schools of the University offering a two year program for undergraduates, a program of work for candidates for the Master's degree, and, in co-operation with the Department of Economics, a program for candidates for the Doctor's degree.

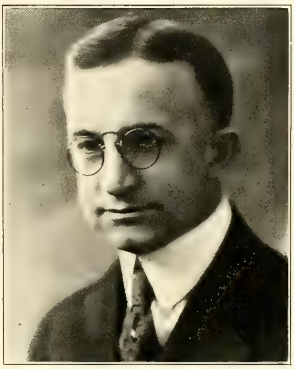

The School has had a long and interesting history. It was organized in 1898 as the College of Commerce and Politics, in response to a growing demand for "University instruction which will provide professional training for the practical work of business in its various branches". At this time the School was not, either as to administration or curriculum, the separate organization that had been intended when Professor J. Lawrence Laughlin, then head of the Department of Political Economy, formulated plans for it in 1894; but in 1902 a separate school, with its own administration and faculty, was authorized.

Henry Rand Hatfield, then Assistant Professor of Political Economy, was appointed Dean in 1902. In 1906 he was succeeded by Francis Wayland Shepardson. Leon Carroll Marshall succeeded Mr. Shepardson in 1909.

In 1910, upon the completion of a study made by Mr. Marshall of American colleges of commerce, schools of civics, and bureaus of municipal research, the School was reorganized. From then on under the direction of Mr. Marshall the School entered upon a period of rapid development. In 1916 the name was changed from the College of Commerce and Administration to the School of Commerce and Administration, its present name. This year also saw the donation by Robert Williams of the Eli B. Williams and the Harriet B. Williams endowment fund. Upon the resignation in 1924 of Mr. Marshall, William Homer Spencer, who had been an assistant dean for four years, became Dean.

In May 1926 the School voted to enter into a more or less formal co-operation with the Department of Economics in offering work in economics in the junior college, in conducting training for business in the senior college, and in carrying on graduate and research work. In November 1926 the faculty voted to discontinue the administration of a junior college curriculum beginning with the Autumn Quarter of 1927.

THE SCHOOL OF EDUCATION

Dean Gray

The School of Education is one of the professional schools of the University. It includes four important divisions, namely the University Elementary School, the University High School, the College of Education, and the Graduate Department of Education. In these various divisions of the school it is possible for a child to begin his earliest school training and to continue his education for a period of nineteen or twenty years until he has fulfilled the requirements for a bachelor's, master's, and doctor's degree.

The divisions of the school with which its members of the class of 1927 are best acquainted are the College of Education and the Elementary and High Schools. This is due to the fact that approximately forty per cent of the undergraduate students in the University are preparing to teach and consequently take from three to six courses in education, including a large amount of observation and practice in the laboratory schools.

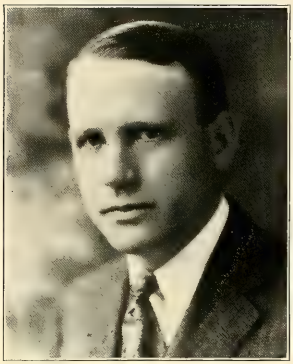

When the College of Education was organized, twenty-five years ago, it considered its chief aim to be the training of elementary school teachers. To this end seven or more one or two year curricula were organized to provide for the needs of different types of teachers. As time went on, prospective secondary school teachers began to seek professional school training also. Consequently subject matter and professional courses were added to meet their needs. During more recent years the work of the College has been to provide for the training of superintendents, principals, supervisors, and critic teachers.

As these demands for enlargement presented themselves, it became necessary for the College to modify the character and scope of its work. In the first place, it gradually discontinued the two year courses for elementary school teachers, retaining only the four year curriculum for kindergarten-primary teachers. It also transferred to the College of Arts, Literature and Science all subject matter courses such as those in art and economics, and discontinued the practice of registering prospective secondary teachers.

Today the College of Education attempts to provide professional training for three types of students, namely, those registered in the College of Education who are preparing for the administrative and supervisory positions or those who wish to teach in the kindergarten and the primary grades, and those registered in the Colleges of Arts, Literature, and Science who expect to teach in the secondary schools. The aim of the College is to provide the students with such training as will enable them to assume positions of leadership in the field of public education.

William Scott Gray, Professor of Education, has been Dean of the College of Education since 1917.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE

FILBEY

University College finds its justification in three kinds of service. First, it makes possible continued University study for college trained men and women who desire to keep in touch with the most recent developments in investigation and research. Second, it enables those who for one reason or another found it impossible to secure a college education through full time attendance to combine study with work and thereby secure whatever benefit is to be derived from such study. Third, through non-credit, and non-technical, lectures, the College has an opportunity to bring to the public representative speakers from the University. It is hoped that such contact will give to those who attend certain enthusiasm and understanding of our scholarly pursuits and that the lecturers on their part will receive new enthusiasm and inspiration for their work as scholars and teachers.

The demand for instruction in University College reflects in a striking manner many of the important changes in society. There is, for example, a constant demand for college courses which go to make up the foundational work of a liberal college education for teachers, doctors, lawyers, and other professional groups.

In addition to the basic cultural courses there is a constant demand for advanced instruction by leaders in research at the University. This demand comes from such professional groups as Engineers, Chemists, Directors of Personnel and Training in Industry, Public School Principals, Teachers, Meat Packers, Social Service Workers, and Leaders in Religious Education. All of these desire courses which put them in touch with the best current practices in their specific lines of endeavor. In such courses there is an opportunity to bring into close relationship practical community problems and the technical leadership available in the University.

There were 3680 students in attendance at the downtown College during 1925-26. Of these 951 were graduate students, 1024 were in the Senior College and 525 were registered in the Junior College. There were 1180 unclassified students not candidates for degrees but who enrolled for one or more courses during the year. Many of these were mature men and women who through evening study were attempting to secure the advantages of a college education which had earlier been denied them.

Emery T. Filbey has been Dean of University College since 1923. He is a Professor of Education in the University of Chicago.

THE WOMEN'S UNIVERSITY COUNCIL

Flint

The Women's University Council is the Deanship of Women exercised by nineteen persons instead of one. The first Dean of Women of the University of Chicago, Alice Freeman Palmer, found 200 women students. There was not even a women's residence hall. The Beatrice, a World's Fair apartment building at 57th Street and Dorchester Avenue, housed 60 women. In the Autumn Quarter of 1926 there were 2155 women students and 74 women on the faculty exclusive of those on the elementary and high school faculty and in the libraries. These numbers connote a great complexity of interests and problems. Nor does the traditional scope of the function of a dean of women confine itself to affairs purely feminine. Social affairs in general come within the jurisdiction of the office.

When Marion Talbot, Dean of Women for 30 years, resigned in 1925 it was apparent as never before how innumerable and how important had been her services, and it was very soon decided that no one person coming new to the office could efficiently discharge its duties. Thus the Council came into being.

It is founded on the idea that collective knowledge and experience are wider and deeper than individual knowledge and experience. It is in accord with the spirit of the times in that it assumes that no one person, however wise, is wise enough to know what is best for a very large group of widely varying people. Its present membership consists of

Mrs. Edith Foster Flint, Chairman

Miss Edith Abbott
Miss Katharine Blunt
Miss Margaret Burns
Miss S. P. Breckinridge
Miss Gertrude Dudley
Miss Frances E. Gillespie
Mrs. G. S. Goodspeed
Miss Helen Jeter
Miss Hazel Kirk
Mrs. Adeline de Sale Link
Mrs. Mayme I. Logsdon
Mrs. Letitia Fyffe Merrill
Miss Hilda Norman
Dr. Marie Ortmayer
Miss Edith Rickert
Miss Beulah Smith
Miss Gertrude Smith
Miss Elizabeth Wallace

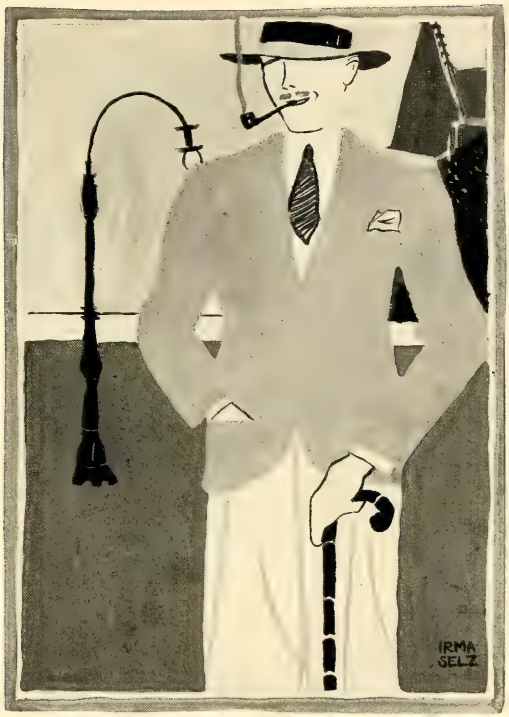

The Executive Committee consists of

Miss Blunt
Miss Dudley
Mrs. Flint
Mrs. Merrill
Miss Rickert
Miss Wallace

Mrs. Letitia Fyffe Merrill, 1914, holds the office of Social Director, a specific feature of the Council scheme.

The Women's University Council is an experiment in educational administration, unique so far as is known, and watched with interest by many other institutions.

The reputation of the University of Chicago known around the world as a great, modern center of intellectual progress is largely the reputation of its graduate and professional schools. Founded with the purpose that it should become a great institution for research, it has rapidly developed outstanding schools of science, law, education, art, religion, philosophy, and literature which steadily attract more scholars from far and wide all over the world. It is this group of graduate schools within the University of Chicago which make it distinctive among mid western schools of higher education. In view of the briefness of time during which the University of Chicago has been in existence the growth of its professional schools to their present size and distinction has been nothing short of phenomenal.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL OF ARTS AND LITERATURE

GORDON J. LAING

The Graduate School of Arts and Literature comprises the advanced divisions of all departments in the fields of Language and Literature and the Social Sciences. Specifically; these departments are Philosophy, Psychology, Economics, Political Science, History, Art, Sociology and Anthropology, Home Economics, Comparative Religion, Oriental Languages, New Testament and Early Christian Literature, Comparative Philology, Greek, Latin, Romance Languages, Germanic Languages, English and General Literature. Admission to the School is granted to students who have a Bachelor's degree from a college of good standing.

For one planning a graduate course the selection of his college is of especial importance. Of equal importance is the choice of a specialty in college. To be sure, every college student must take care of his general education, but in addition to this he should, at least as early as the beginning of his third year, get started on a well-defined major. One who does this enters on his graduate work with zest and carries it through with facility.

While there are still some courses open to both undergraduates and graduates, the trend is distinctly toward a sharper differentiation between graduate and undergraduate studies. One of the ideals toward which the administrative officers of the Graduate School are working is the reduction to the minimum of the courses of a purely informational type. There is still another tendency in the current discussion of the curriculum, namely the growing belief that graduate students are now required to take to many courses. A very sharp reduction in the number of formal courses taken by graduate students is doubtless one of the changes imminent in the Graduate School.

The most recent development in the Graduate School is the growth of Research Institutes. For, although only one has been formally organized in the field of Arts and Literature, namely the Oriental Institute under the directorship of James H. Breasted, cooperative projects embodying many of the principles of institutes, are already under way in the Departments of English, Romance, Education and the Social Sciences.

The Graduate School of Arts and Literature was organized at the very beginning of the University. Its steady success is indicated by the amount of research work done and published by the members of the Faculty, by the journals edited by them, and by the long list of Ph.D. Alumni who are now occupying positions of distinction in the colleges and universities of this and other countries.

THE OGDEN GRADUATE SCHOOL OF SCIENCE

HENRY G. GALE

When the faculty of the University was first chosen by President Harper, it was with the idea of forming a nucleus for a strong graduate school. Of the various men of international reputation on our faculty at the beginning, no small proportion was in the departments of the Ogden Graduate School of Science. Any university which numbered on its staff such men as Moore, Bolza, and Maschke in Mathematics, Hale in Astronomy, Michelson in Physics, Neff in Chemistry, Chamberlin and Salisbury in Geology, Whitman in Zoology, Loeb in Physiology, and Coulter in Botany could not fail to attract world-wide attention. The fine purpose of achievement offered by their presence here was fulfilled; and whatever place of honor the University holds in the world of scholarship at the present time is due to them, to their colleagues in the humanities, and to their associates and successors.

The only University Laboratory during the first year or two was an apartment building which had been leased for that purpose at the corner of University Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street. Ryerson Physical Laboratory, Kent Chemical Laboratory, and Walker Museum were built in 1893, and the Hull Court Group in 1896. Things were moving rapidly for Science here in the early years, but it is well to remember that the University owes its fine reputation not to the buildings and equipment, but to the men on the academic staff who made such splendid use of the opportunities afforded them.

At the present time we are reaping the fruits of much wise and careful planning by President Judson, President Burton, and President Mason. The new Physiology Building is already occupied by the departments of Physiology, Physiological Chemistry, and Pharmacology. The new Whitman laboratory and Greenhouses are now occupied by research workers in Zoology. The magnificent new Hospital Group, which will house the Department of Pathology and the two new departments in the School of Science—Medicine and Surgery—is nearly completed. A considerable number of the faculty in each of these new departments are already here. A new Chemical Laboratory will be built west of Kent during the coming year, and we have high hopes for a new building for Mathematics and Astronomy with additional laboratory space for Physics to be built east of Ryerson. New Greenhouses and a head house must be provided for the Department of Botany.

It is natural to hope and expect that with these added facilities for work the scientific accomplishments of the Ogden Graduate School will bring increasing renown to the University and satisfaction to its loyal alumni and friends.

LAW

THE LAW SCHOOL

The Law School, established in 1902, this year completed its first quarter century, during which time it has matriculated over 3900 students and has graduated nearly 1400. It celebrated this occasion by an increase of eighty or ninety in attendance, making a total of about 420 for the Autumn Quarter and about 520 for the year. The first year class, though divided into two sections, strains the accomodations of the Law Building and foreshadows the time, not far distant, when the present building must be enlarged by the addition (originally planned) of a wing on the eastern side. In June 1926 its new graduate degree of J. S. D. was for the first time conferred for the publication of the results of legal research by the graduate students in law. Professor Kenneth Craddock Sears, J.D. '15, having previously taught in the Law Schools of the University of Missouri and Yale University, became a member of the faculty of the Law School in 1926, teaching Partnership, Banking, Code Pleading, and Agency. Professors Bigelow and Mechem have been chosen by the American Law Institute, the former to restate the law of Property, and the latter to restate the law of Agency, in the work upon which the Institute is now engaged. The Institute has chosen only the best men for this work and the selection of the Professors Mechem and Bigelow brings great credit to them and to the Law School in general.

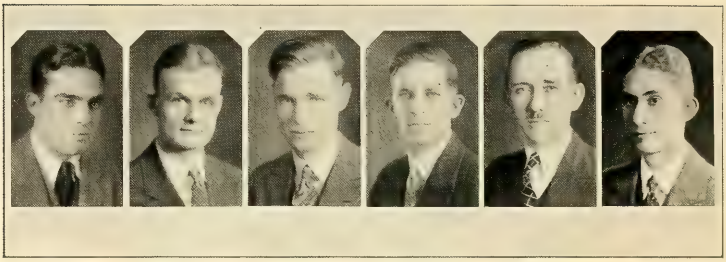

THE LAW SCHOOL

The Library of the Law School is one of the best in the country. It contains over 52,000 volumes and, with the exception of a few country court decisions, it includes all the American, English, Irish, Scotch, Canadian, Australian, New Zealand, and higher Indian reports, with their digests; all past and present codes and statutory revisions of these jurisdictions; the recent South African reports; all English, Irish, and Scotch statutes; nearly all of the session laws of the American states and the Canadian provinces; all colateral reports and series of classified cases in use; an extensive collection of treatises, periodicals, trials, and legal miscellany, including a large amount of old English historical material; and a working library in French, German, Spanish, and Mexican law.

The Law School offers three degrees; the degree of J.S.D., already mentioned; the degree of J.D. which is given for the completion of three years in the undergraduate work and three years in the Law School, the first year in the Law School to count toward the undergraduate degree, such as Ph.B., B.S., or A.B., and the degree of LL.B. which is given to those who only have 18 majors of credit. The last prerequisite is that the student maintain an average of ten points above passing.

During this, its twenty-fifth year of existence, the Law School Council has endeavored to act in a really representative capacity for the Law Students. Aside from arranging for the annual Law School Smoker, keeping the lounging rooms in order, and supervising elections, the Council has considered very carefully all complaints and suggestions made by Law students and has done its best to remedy, or at least to improve, conditions thus called to its attention.

A slight depression in the stone stairs is evidence of the fact that for twenty-five years some three hundred students have been passing up the three flights of stairs—ten stairs to a flight—that lead to the Law library. The part which our class has had in making that impression is as slight and as immeasurable as our influence upon the school has been in other respects. But the impression that the school has made upon us has depended only upon our capacity and willingness to receive. We know that we will miss the atmosphere of the Law School—the kindly, open-minded, fact-minded, discussions and the faces of the students and professors who we have come through long association to admire and respect. We leave the Law School and our University, grateful for the preparation which we have received here and hoping that in the future we may reflect credit upon our school and the profession which we pursue.

For most students the first year in the Law School is a most stimulating experience. They assume a new attitude and soon fall into a spirit of earnest study and genuine enthusiasm. However when they enter their second year they hesitate to expect to much after the enthusiastic first year. They may feel that the novelty will not last, and that things will become more matter of fact. Their enthusiasm is likely to let down. What at first appeared to be the noble search for knowledge, impelled by a high idealism, is likely to turn into the daily grind of briefing cases, attending classes, and preparing for examinations.

For some this may have been the turn of things as they continued through their second year. Perhaps for some the high idealism of the first year began to decline. For the larger number of students, fortunately, there was no let-down, but there was an increased vigor in their second year work. The job of delving into the depths of law seems to be no less fascinating and the enthusiasm continues for the study that is to be the basis for their life's work.

MEDICINE

THE MEDICAL SCHOOL

Medicine at Rush

After a period of affiliation of twenty-five years, the union of Rush Medical College with the University of Chicago was affected some three years ago, and Rush is now one of the Schools of the University.

The buildings of the University on the West Side include the new Rawson Clinical Building, completed last year, Senn Hall, and the Laboratory Building south of Harrison Street. The Presbyterian Hospital adjoins the Rawson Building on the north and to the south are the John McCormick Institute for Infectious Diseases, The Durand Hospital, and the Cook County Hospital. The Central Free Dispensary which cares for over 100,000 patients each year is housed in parts of the Rawson and Senn Buildings. The remaining space in these buildings is devoted to clinic rooms and research laboratories.

The work of Rush in the medical program of the University is directed along two lines: the development of a Postgraduate School of Medicine, in which graduates in medicine may continue their studies in special fields of medicne, and for the present the continuation of undergraduate medical instruction in the clinical years of the medical course.

Opportunity for advanced study by graduates in medicine has been offered at Rush for a number of years to students who are able to spend from one to three years or more in study to prepare themselves for practice in some special field of medicine. This type of work which combines clinical experience with facilities for study of special problems and for research will form for the present the chief work of the Postgraduate School.

The continuation of the work of the third and fourth years of the medical course at the Rush Medical College in cooperation with the medical school on the Quadrangles will enable students to obtain additional clinical advantages afforded by the Hospitals and Dispensary adjacent to Rush.

THE MEDICAL SCHOOL

Medicine on the Quadrangles

As the new buildings of the medical departments rise to impressive heights, all members of the University are curious concerning their significance. The outstanding feature of this medical work is that it is on the Quadrangles. Medicine has suffered in many places from isolation, physical, scientific and spiritual. Although a chemist, Pasteur, has helped medicine and a physician, Helmholt, helped physics and a medical student, Darwin, turned to general biology and made it over, progress in all lines has been less than it might have been because co-operation has been across wide spaces. Here close physical association expresses a unity of purpose and of spirit.

This unity is not new. Over thirty years ago the University entrusted the cultivation of special fields of knowledge to Departments of Anatomy, Physiology, Hygiene and Bacteriology, Physiological Chemistry and Pathology. Their purposes were the development of science and the training of scientists. Now Departments of Medicine and Surgery with the necessary hospitals and clinics have been added. They have the same purposes. Others will follow. All these departments are in exactly the same relation to the University as Physics or Zoology. Students who have the interest and the necessary prerequisites may register in any of them for work leading toward the knowledge and understanding marked by any of our degrees in science. It is true that a Graduate School of Medicine is organized within the Graduate School of Science, but the departments are concerned with this only incidentally and not exclusively. It is a device for helping some students to meet some legal requirements. The medical departments are in no way separated from the rest of the University.

With the graduation of the 1927 Senior Medical Class, the products of four years' vigilant training will be released from the confines of Rush Medical College to be endowed with the new dignity of the title, M.D. The completion of a course in the Medical School holds a far deeper significance than does the termination of a general education in one of the less specialized schools of the university. While the latter exemplifies culture and development of mind, and may afford a capacity for intelligent advancement in almost any field of work, the former shows the creation of a highly specialized ability, and one which is universally recognized among the greatest social boons. Those who go to college with the intent of entering the medical profession, despite the long period of preparation and the extensive requirements, must necessarily have serious ambition and perseverance.

The Senior Class of '27 is a representative example of such a group of students who have succeeded in the first difficult step of the profession, a medical education. When the class came as a group of Freshmen in 1924, the students, already surfeiting with a four years' accumulation of facts, were again set to face two years of required theory, research, and memory work. After the satisfactory completion of this period, the students pursued a more practical course of study, involving the application of those principles already learned. Now the members of the class, having attained to a satisfactory standard in the understanding of medicine, will be sent forth duly authorized to exercise their ability to its best advantage in the years to come.

THE MEDICAL PROGRAM

It was three years ago that the University synthesized its ideas and its ideals into concrete form and poured them into the mold whence has arisen the new Medical Group. Three years ago, and today the Albert Merritt Billings Hospital, the Epstein Clinic, the Frank Billings Clinic, and the Medical Buildings of the University of Chicago stand in their Gothic splendor where before stood nothing. And these buildings embody not only their pure beauty of structure, not only the fact that thirteen million dollars lie already to continue what five million dollars have commenced but a representation of a new ideal and a lofty decision in means and methods of medical education. Medicine! The word has adopted a new symbolism.

We are tempted to ask, as we note the tremendous sweep of the buildings and consider the enormous amount of money that is behind them, whether the results gained from such a lavish expenditure and painstaking exactitude of structure will balance the efforts put forth. We are tempted to question the wisdom of the University and the men behind this phase of its development, to think that they have exceeded the mark. But our doubts die on our lips. When James O'Donnell Bennett interviewed Dr. Franklin McLean, chairman of the University's medical department, on the new medical group, he expressed just those doubts and many more. He asked him why this and why that and Dr. McLean summed up the whole situation in these words:

"To create a medical school conducted on a University basis. To create such an atmosphere that if a student has any talent or genius, it will come out. To breed thinkers. Not to stuff the man with knowledge but to teach him to use knowledge. To incorporate him with the whole university as a seat of research and a means to the individuals' development instead of setting him apart from the whole university. That's the whole idea."

There, in Dr. McLean's words, is the raison d'etre of the medical group. When the old Rush Medical College was absorbed into the Medical School of the University of Chicago, that vision which has now been realized was the motive and the propelling force behind it all. It now remains to people the structure with students that will honor it. And when all of the departments of this new medical foundation are in use and operation, there will be four hundred embryo Luckhardts, Carlsons, and future medical leaders with a staff of one hundred to teach, guide, aid, and instruct them.

To turn to the more practical facts of the new medical group and to fully appreciate the basis upon which the theories will rest, we must consider the origin of the plans which have been incorporated in the actual construction of the buildings. It was felt that separate buildings should house the separate branches and departments and divisions but, paradoxically enough, the desire was to create a unit composed of units. And that is precisely what the architects, Coolidge and Hodgdon, have admirably done. Each building is complete in itself, may operate as a unit with perfect autonomy, but is sufficiently a part of the whole to avoid duplication of services which may be used in common and to insure the utmost in co-ordination of work. In reality, it is all one vast unit, physically divided to the most desirable extent, but, withal, perfectly linked together. The artificial distinction between research in the laboratories and observations in the wards is completely broken down, and the laboratory and bedside are separated by only a few steps. The marvelous degree to which theory and practice of medicine are combined is best expressed again by Dr. McLean, and his words describe both ideals and their attainment:

"Elsewhere hospital and medical school stand side by side. Here our hospital is our medical school."

DIVINITY

THE DIVINITY SCHOOL

Swift Hall

The Divinity School of the University of Chicago is at once a graduate school of religion and a professional school for training leaders in the various aspects of religious life, such as the pastorate, religious education, social service and missions. In its investigations it has the full liberty of the University, and in its practical training it endeavors to embody the fundamental principles of education and practical experience. Its attendance during the four quarters is between four and five hundred. For those who care to work for a degree, entrance to the Divinity School is given on the same basis as it is to any graduate school of the University.

Members of the Divinity Faculty and Conference, which includes instructors who are members of the Faculty of Arts, Literature, and Science, publish the Journal of Religion, The American Journal of Semitic Languages and Literature, and edit a series of text books for religious instruction for all grades from the first grade to college. Through the American Institute of Sacred Literature, a department of the University, they conduct a popular Bible study followed annually by ten thousand persons, and issue a very considerable body of literature in the interests of intelligent religious beliefs.

One of the fields of major importance in a religious education is that of Christian doctrine and ethics, which is covered by four professors in the Department of Systematic Theology under the headings of general historical courses, constructive Theology, Apologetics, Psychology and Philosophy of religion, and Ethics. The Science and Philosophy of religion, with emphasis on the adjustment of religions to modern conditions, are handled in the Department of Comparative religion. The Church History Department embodys the rise of Christianity and its spread in the Roman Empire, its expansion among European nations and on the British Isles, and its establishment in the Western Hemisphere.

THE DIVINITY SCHOOL

Bond Chapel

In order that the doctrine of Christianity might be most efficiently propagated, courses are offered in all lines of public speaking and teaching. Training in church music and discussions on its formality are also provided. The New Testament Department presents an opportunity for exhaustive research into the spirit, meaning and views conveyed in the New Testament of the Bible. The courses in that department include also the Jewish literature immediately preceding the New Testament, contemporary Greek and Roman literature, and subsequent early Christian writing.

The field of practical theology includes instruction in preaching, church administration, religious education, missions and vocational training. Students are given the actual experience of preaching in Bond Chapel, and almost all those being instructed in pastoral administration and vocational training have a regular employment in some phase of church work. Students in religious education are eligible to courses in psychology, both social and educational, given in other schools of the University. The Missionary Department provides twenty-five furnished apartments for missionaries on furlough, and in the past year sixty missionaries from thirteen countries were registered.

The Divinity School is a firm supporter of personal religion, aiming to give individual educations rather than to standardize the instruction. In the struggle over modernism and evolution the instructors of the Divinity School have been among the leaders in standing for a liberal, scientific position. As evidence of the Divinity School's efficiency, hundreds of the prominent preachers of today owe their success partly to its training. Professorships attained by its former students number over one hundred and fifty in theological seminaries, and several hundred in colleges and universities. Nearly five hundred are missionaries, while many hold responsible administrative positions.

DIVINITY SCHOOL COUNCIL

The present volume of the Cap and Gown may fittingly record the long anticipated migration of the Divinity School from the mummy-haunted quarters in Haskell Museum. By this moving out, which Dr. Breasted describes as the kindest act in the existence of the Divinity School, we entered into possession of a delightful new home, Swift Hall, furnishing every facility for the fullest development of student and academic interests. The past year is also marked by the dedication of our new Chapel, built in memory of Dr. Joseph Bond.

In order that student life in these ideal surroundings may be adequately directed, an executive group of three persons—President, Secretary, and Treasurer —is elected during each Spring quarter ,to serve during the following academic year. These three are required by the constitution of the Divinity Students' Association, which embraces all students in the school, to appoint heads of such committees as are considered necessary for the proper promotion of the various student interests. The three so elected, with the committee chairman, comprise the Divinity Students' Council. The responsibilities of these committees are briefly outlined in the paragraphs that follow.

The Social Committee directs a large share of the activities of the student body. Prominent among its duties is the serving of tea every Thursday afternoon in the Common Room, affording an opportunity for pleasant social contact between faculty and students and their friends. Music or readings add to these affairs, or occasionally some guest of honor is introduced. These teas have made a very significant contribution towards the life of the School, and have aided in the development of a fine esprit de corps. This committee also organizes such functions as the Hallowe'en party, the quarterly picnic or steamer trip and cooperates with the Council of the associated Theological schools in promoting the annual All-Divinity banquet.

Among the most valued privileges of the students of the Divinity School is that of worship in the Joseph Bond Chapel. The generosity of Mrs. Joseph Bond has given us a shrine of rare beauty, where daily chapel is conducted, as well as vespers, services of music, and other devotional meetings. The wishes and suggestions of the student body in regard to the religious life of the school are mediated through the Devotional Committee of the Council, which also promotes dormitory meetings.

The services of the Personal Relations Committee unobtrusively proferred at times when sorrow or misfortune enters the lives of students. Not infrequently sympathetic encouragement and advice may achieve solution of these difficulties or bring some measure of relief.

The Athletic Committee is responsible for organizing touchball, basketball and other teams. The School has had its share of athletic success in recent years and good fortune is again hoped for. An all-Divinity athletic night for both men and women is a feature of the year.

Now that clubhouse facilities are being provided for the graduate students of the University, the Divinity School wishes to participate as fully as possible in the responsibilities of the Graduate Club. To this end, a representative has been nominated for the Club executive. He will aim to secure the fullest possible cooperation by this School in the new project.

The student body of the University is perhaps not generally aware that the facilities of Swift Hall are used not only by the Divinity School of the University, but also by the associated Theological institutions—The Chicago Theological Seminary, the Congregational Training School, the Ryder Divinity House, the Disciples Divinity House, and to some extent the Meadville Theological Seminary. This official association in academic work is paralleled by friendly cooperation and competition between the respective student bodies. The Divinity School Student Council has always regarded such contacts as a major pleasure and duty.

DEPARTMENTAL CLUBS

THE NEW TESTAMENT CLUB

Clayton R. Bowen . . . . . President
Everett A. Overton . . . . . Vice-President
Mabel R. Carter . . . . . Secretary

The New Testament Club invites into its membership all who take a professional or amateur interest in the New Testament and its cognate literature. The Club meets regularly for social fellowship and discussion.

THE CHURCH HISTORY CLUB

Reuben E. Harkness . . . . . President
John Halko, Jr. . . . . Vice-President
Mervin M. Deems . . . . . Secretary

The students and faculty of the Church History department meet to hear reports of work done in their field and to secure more cordial cooperation in their common task.

MEADVILLE HOUSE

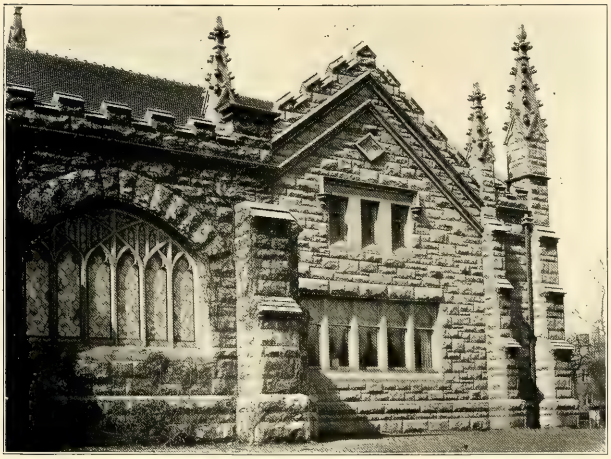

Proposed Plan for New Building

The Meadville Theological School was founded in 1844 by Harm Jan Huidekoper, a native of Holland, who brought to Meadville, Pennsylvania, the same love for religious freedom that the Pilgrims brought in 1620 from Leyden. Its particular object was to provide ministers for a group of churches in the Central West to which creed subscription either for minister or layman as a basis of church membership was uncongenial; and in order that the study of religion and theology might be pursued with the same single minded devotion to truth with which the study of history and science are sought in the universities, it was provided in the charter that "no doctrinal test shall ever be made a condition of enjoying any of the opportunities of instruction".

So long as preparation for the ministry had to do mainly with the languages of the ancient books and the study of ancient creeds, the School was able to find in the city of its birth adequate scope for its activities; but in the early years of the twentieth century it became clear that a different type of minister was needed as interpreter of the new world which modern science had disclosed, and that for this new type of minister there was needed a different kind of training from that which the nineteenth century had given. It was not enough that such a minister should have a college education. His education must include elements which even up-to-date colleges, with their elective systems, do not require of all their graduates; not only history but also science; not only economics but also sociology; not only the ancient classics but also modern literature; not only philosophy and psychology but also music and art; all these not as a substitute for but as a preparation for the more distinctly vocational subjects to which a training school for the ministry will give its special attention.

MEADVILLE HOUSE

Memorial Chapel for Daily Service

A dozen years ago it became clear to the Meadville Trustees that a professional school in a small city far removed from a modern university was unable to educate a minister adequately for his present task. An arrangement was made, therefore, in 1914 with the University of Chicago by which Meadville students have been coming to the University for the Summer Quarter of each year accompanied by one or more professors, and returning to Meadville in the Fall. This contact with a modern university has proved so stimulating that with the beginning of the Autumn Quarter of 1926 all the educational activities of the School were transferred to Chicago.

Students in the Meadville Theological School now matriculate also in the Divinity School of the University of Chicago, and by virtue of such matriculation become eligible to the privileges of the University: its class rooms, its lecture halls, its libraries, its gymnasium, and, upon the usual conditions, its academic degrees. The School is located at Woodlawn Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street, where it owns a lot and three residences. It holds daily services of worship in the Memorial Chapel.

The Meadville Theological School trains men and women as preachers, pastors, parish assistants, and directors of religious education and social service. It offers to properly qualified candidates for admission, opportunities for field work in the churches or other religious and social agencies of Chicago as a part of their training as students. The diploma of the School with the degree of Bachelor of Divinity may be won by college graduates in three years of three quarters each, or in two and one third years of four quarters each. The degrees of S.T.M. and Th.D. are offered for graduate theological study.

RYDER DIVINITY SCHOOL

Ryder Divinity School is the western theological training school for the Universalist Church. Two other schools in the East are nearer the center of the Denomination, so that Ryder represents the pioneers of its denomination.

The School was opened in 1881 as a department of Lombard College at Galesburg, Illinois. In 1912 the School was removed to Chicago, where its students are trained in the University of Chicago Theological School, receiving instruction and direction in denominational matters by the Dean, resident in the House.

In 1918 a dormitory building for the school including residence for the Dean was erected at a cost of $50,000. This building was put up in conjunction with the new home of St. Paul's Universalist Church on the Midway at Dorchester Avenue. The Church has served as a splendid laboratory for the students, supplying that first hand knowledge of Church organization and direction which too often is not secured, except at the expense of a minister's early charges.

Dr. L. B. Fisher was the Dean for twelve years after the removal to Chicago, and his great spirit and genial personality won many friends for the School. The present Dean's work is on the basis of a weekly lecture throughout the three year's course of the student, with supervised work in church organization. While the student body is normally small, it has increased the past few years, and further development is anticipated.

THE CHICAGO THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

(Congregational)

OZORA S. DAVIS, Ph.D., LL.D., President

Students and Faculty alike at the University of Chicago have watched with increasing interest and appreciation the growth of the Chicago Theological Seminary, since 1923.

Housed at that time in a single building, which has since been given to the University for use as a Graduate Club, the Seminary now offers to its theological students one of the most attractive homes of its kind in America.

The new buildings will be finished in the spring of 1928, at a total cost of approximately $1,000,000.

SOCIAL SERVICE

SOCIAL SERVICE

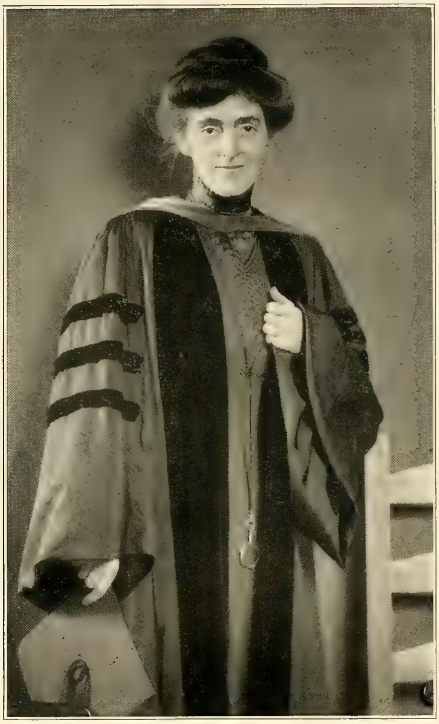

University of Chicago Settlement House

The School of Social Service Administration, although one of the youngest of the professional schools of the University, nevertheless completed the twenty-fifth year of its existence this year. Under its present name, however, it is only seven years old. Founded it 1901 as a part of the extension work of the University, the school finally became independent and was one of the best known training schools for social workers from 1908 to 1920 under the name of the Chicago School of Civics and Philanthropy.

With its removal to the University quadrangles in 1920, the School became one of the graduate professional schools of the University. We present here the picture of the University of Chicago Settlement, located in the stock yards district, where much of the field work of the students is carried on.

The School now offers a full graduate curriculum leading to the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy, and sends out each year a large number of students to take over the responsibilities of public welfare service in various parts of the country. University alumni who have worked in the school will be found in the Juvenile Courts, Charity Organization, Societies, Children's Home and Aid Societies, Institutions for dependent and delinquent children, in hospitals, settlements, and in social research positions in various parts of the United States and Canada.

Edith Abbott
Dean

Sophonisba P. Breckinridge

No member of the faculty has more friends among alumni, as well as present students, than Professor Sophonisba Breckinridge. A graduate of Wellesley, Miss Breckinridge holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and J.D. from the University of Chicago, and she has been a member of the faculty since 1904. From 1906 to 1912 and from 1923 to 1926 she was also Dean in the Colleges and has known students of many different classes. In recent years she has devoted her attention largely to the development of the School of Social Service Administration and the interests of graduate students. In the autumn quarter, 1925, Green Hall was made a hall of residence for graduate women students with Miss Breckinridge as its head. Miss Breckinridge was dean of the old school of Civics, which preceded the School of Social Service Administration, and has been connected with the School and with a large number of social agencies in the city for a period of nearly twenty years. In spite of a busy life on the quadrangles, not only in teaching but in research work, Miss Breckinridge has always found time for service in the larger community of which the University is a part. She has been the Secretary of the Immigrants' Protective League since its organization, and has served on numerous other boards and social service committees. She is one of the editors of the Social Service Review, the most recent of the University publications.

The Social Service Club brings together students and faculty members of the Graduate School of Social Service Administration into a group which carries on the extra-curricular activities of the School.

During the year its program includes speakers chosen from among those who are making real contributions to the theory and practice of social work. And discussions are frequently held which give each member an opportunity to benefit by the experience of the group. Through its meetings members of the Club come to know one another and to meet distinguished guests.

The Club is always glad to share its meetings with other members of the University who are interested in social work. In this way it approaches a forum of social service for the whole University.

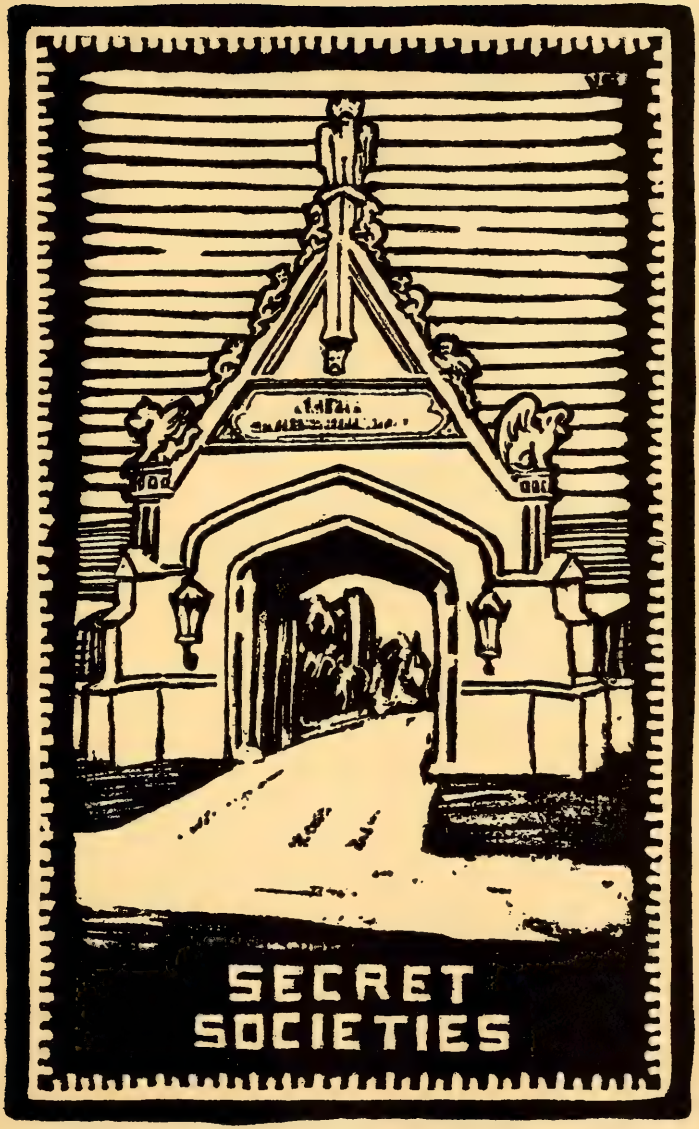

In Memoriam

Leila Houghteling
1889—1927

The class of 1927 shares with the School of Social Service Administration in the loss of a gifted and devoted member of the faculty. Dean Houghteling had been connected with the School of Social Service since 1922, and was made Dean in the College of Arts, Literature, and Science in 1926. Since her graduation from Bryn Mawr in 1911, Dean Houghteling had been engaged in social service work in Chicago. Her early death is mourned by students and fellow-workers in the University and also by leaders in the field of social work in Chicago who have paid tribute to her work as a friend and leader known for her intelligent and sympathetic understanding of the needs of the poor.

Situated close to the heart of college life are its secret societies with their associations, friendships, and distinctions. Founded upon varying purposes and including varying types of groups from within the student body, they meet the differing needs for fellowship and intimate associations, for recognition of potentialities of leadership, and for recognition of scholastic attainments. From Freshman to Graduate, the spell of Greek letters and the mystery of secret rites holds sway on this, as on all other college campuses.

THE INTER-CLUB COUNCIL

GRAHAM PLIMPTON

OFFICERS

BETTY GRAHAM . . . . . President
MARION PLIMPTON . . . . . Secretary

The Inter-Club Council is organized to promote friendship and co-operation among the women's secret social organizations of the University. It's membership is composed of two representatives from each of the twelve clubs and an advisory group consisting of Mrs. Flint, Mrs. Merrill, Mrs. Link, Mrs. Herschl, and Miss Dudley. The Council's main function is to regulate women's rushing by formulating certain rules. This year the formal rushing season lasted ten days and was followed by the pledging of one hundred and twenty-five women. The season was felt to be very successful, and no cases of rule infringement were brought before the Council.

Minor activities of Inter-Club for the Fall Quarter included the planning and executing of the decorations used at the Score Club-Skull and Crescent Dance on October twenty-ninth at the Shoreland Hotel, and the planning of separate club functions for club alumnae on Homecoming, November twenty-sixth. This year Inter-Club also adopted for initiation of club pledges the eligibility rules used by the Interfraternity Council. At the suggestion of Inter-Club, the Committee on Senior College Club is still confering with club members in an effort to have club membership extended only to Juniors and Seniors in the University.

The aim of this section is to give a representative view of the extra-curricular activities which fill a large place in the lives of the students at the University of Chicago. Student organizations are representative of the trends of thought and aspirations which prevail among the majority of those on the campus. Varying in size from very small to very large groups, and in purpose from provision for mere social intercourse to systematic training for various types of leadership, they offer an opportunity to all students to find recreation and fellowship together with advancement in the lines of their particular interest. It is chiefly through the "activities" that the students have an opportunity of contributing to the University something of themselves, in the form of ideas, ideals, and creative work.

VS
ACTIVITIES

ORGANIZATIONS

THE UNDERGRADUATE COUNCIL

BENNETT BURTIS

What then is the Undergraduate Council? Turning to Rousseau, we find its definition. "An intermediate body established between subjects and sovereign for their mutual intercourse, charged with the execution of the laws, and the maintenance of liberty—civil as well as political". By changing a few of the terms used, this becomes an excellent statement of this body. The Undergraduate Council, composed mainly of ex-officio members, has a dual purpose. First, it considers the various problems of activities and student life in general, having the cosmopolitan wisdom of the large departments of campus activities at its service. Second, it gives advice to the various departments of activities in their own problems. Even a third function could be assigned to the regular duties of the Council; that of intermediary between faculty and students, tho this function is slowly dying thru lack of use.

One of the chief problems of the Undergraduate Council is in its membership. An excellent array of positioned members, but no workers. Each member of the Council is so busy in his own department that he has no time to give anything to the Council except momentary advice, which is only at its best when backed by laborious study. Some day, in the course of history, a system may be devised whereby the Council merely thinks, and a large number of underclassmen do the work. Thus the members will be directors, very much to their liking, and the clerks will do the work. However, in a democratic school it is hard to find those clerks who, obviously, work for nothing but love; as membership in the Council does not come from working for it, but rather in working away from it.

Yet, the Council has projected many things. It has studied the system of Freshman assimilation by trying many experiments on this year's Freshman Class, and by investigating Freshman Week. It has studied the election system in detail. It has studied the limitations of activities with the intention of giving more spare time to overworked Seniors. It has sponsored the usual list of dances, elections, and appointments. The question of class privileges has been considered with the view of selling class tickets. Even the blanket tax for publications has not been neglected.

One of the very few schools to give the students a voice in honor matters is the University of Chicago. The present Commission is a co-operative body composed of six faculty members and six students (four Seniors and two Juniors). It has a two-fold duty; first, the promotion of the honor sentiment throughout the student body, and, second, the investigation and trial of cases of alleged dishonesty. Their decisions are subject to the approval of the Dean and of the President.

The University has not, at present, the complete honor system, such as exists in a few large schools. Whether it will adopt some system depends, in a large degree, on the will of the students as a whole. The Commission has heartily recommended that examinations be carefully supervised, in the absence of an honor system, in order to decrease as much as possible the temptation to cheat. It has also endeavored to impress on incoming students, not only the present utility of honorable conduct, but the very lasting benefits which result from the building of a strong character.

During the past year, the Commission has accomplished a great deal in its consideration of the Honor Problem in general. Mr. Tyman, the chairman, has been particularly active. He has made an extensive study of the methods and the honor problems of other schools. He has written to over fifty colleges and universities and has crystallized this information in a short article.

Two most important steps have been taken by the Commission this year. The rehabilitation, or reinstatement in good standing, after a certain period, of offenders is provided for. This means that the record of the offender is removed from the books and destroyed, and he starts with a clean slate. Honor sections have also been provided for. This means that in a school (without a definite Honor System) small groups or classes can, if a high enough percentage of the students want it, go on a regular Honor System.

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

The Young Men's Christian Association is a fellowship of university men who are seeking to realize in their own lives, and in the lives of the various groups of which they are members, an appreciation and desire for the ideals of Christian living and service.

Membership in the Association is made up of men who make the above purpose dominant in their lives.

During the past year, the cabinet has attempted the difficult task of not only carrying out their regular program, but also of studying and evaluating each phase of their work. They have endeavored to develop a program that centered its emphasis around those phases of student life in which character is most affected.

The Association has been responsible for the following activities: promoting discussions and luncheons among Freshman men, enlisting a large number of students to attend the National Student Conference, initiating fireside meetings among the fraternities, cooperating with the denominational workers, working out a meaningful membership basis, directing a study of group life at the University, enlisting men in Boys' Clubs and Community Service projects, cooperating with the Honor Commission, publishing a Handbook, and sending out University leaders to conduct meetings among boys in the churches and in communities.

THE Y. M. C. A. CABINET

Thru the efforts of the Cabinet, the activities of the "Y" have been extended each year. During the past year, more students have participated in its activities than ever before. In an effort to interest and inspire the individual college student, the "Y" has made its influence felt in every phase and part of college life. The average student finds that many of his interests are created and served by the "Y".

The college student is not the only one, however, who finds enrichment in his contact with the Y. M. C. A., for part of its program includes the helping of others at various settlement houses throughout the city. In this way, the student is led into the life of useful service that the organization strives to inspire students to follow.

THE REYNOLDS STUDENT CLUBHOUSE

During the past year, the Reynolds Student Clubhouse has been successful in serving a greater number of guests than ever before. Both members of the University and visitors have found the Club eager to serve them.

The popularity of the Club was demonstrated most strikingly during the football season. Each visiting institution was invited to make the Clubhouse its headquarters on the day of the game. All the services of the Club were extended to the visitors and the guests enjoyed a hospitality which helped greatly in emphasizing the friendly part of the expression, friendly rivals. After each game, our students met the alumni and students of the visiting institution at a mixer, and our out-of-town guests always left with an appreciation for the hospitality given them.

In its function as host to the University, itself, the Reynolds Student Clubhouse holds an enviable record. About five hundred room assignments were made during the past year to various organizations on campus. The Club is the permanent home of the Y. M. C. A., the Blackfriars, and the Dramatic Association. A radio broadcasting studio has been maintained in the Clubhouse for the University Publicity Department, and the programs given have been one of the best means of acquainting the public with affairs of the University.

It is to Mr. Joseph Reynolds that the Club owes its existence. The death of his son prompted him to provide the necessary money to build a clubhouse for young men. The idea of a club had long been fostered by President Harper, and Mr. Reynolds' gift made the idea a reality.

The cornerstone of the Clubhouse was laid in June, 1901. A Clubhouse Commission was appointed to draw up a constitution and to decide on a name. The Commission was unanimous in choosing to name the Club after Mr. Reynolds.

In the autumn of 1903, the Club was in full operation, and immediately it became a center of campus activities. Bowling alleys and billiard tables, as well as the library and meeting rooms, made the Club a convenience for every member of the University.

The motto, composed by Percy Holmes Boynton, "Filii Ejusdem Almae Matris" (Sons of the Same Beloved Mother) best expresses the ideal under which the Club operates. It has been successful in maintaining a campus home with the right atmosphere for all the men of the campus.

IDA NOYES HALL

Ida Noyes Hall, the clubhouse for women, was given by Mr. La Verne Noyes in memory of his wife, Ida E. S. Noyes. It was completed and dedicated at the time of the quarter centennial celebration in June, 1916. The import of this new and beautiful hall was expressed in symbolic form by the presentation of the Masque of Youth, given by the members of the University in the Women's Quadrangles. This Masque and the gift it represents are beautifully commemorated by Jessie Arms Botke in the mural on the walls of the little theatre on the third floor.

The committee of University women who were responsible for its furnishings have made Ida Noyes Hall like "a home in which refined people have lived for a long time". The Library is an example of the idea of the committee that a combination of different periods in the furniture would make the rooms less formal and more livable. The chest is Gothic, the chairs by the fireplace are Renaissance, one desk is of the period of William and Mary, the other of Queen Anne's time, and the long table is a reproduction of one in the Kensington Museum and is of the Jacobean period.

The beauty of the building is enhanced throughout by the warmth and color of the Oriental rugs and by the beauty of very notable gifts. On the landing of the main stairway are two portraits by Louis Betts, one of Mrs. Noyes, the other of Mr. Noyes. On the second floor is a very interesting portrait of Mrs. Noyes painted during her lifetime by Oliver Dennett Grover, and a painting by the same artist of Mrs. Harry Pratt Judson who so interested Mr. Noyes in the women of the University that he was inspired to give this beautiful clubhouse. Here, also, is a chair which is the replica of that used by the President of Harvard.

THE BOARD OF WOMEN'S ORGANIZATIONS

The Board of Women's Organizations was first organized in 1924 under the plan of reorganization of the Undergraduate Council as one of the three separate boards representing various phases of campus activities. As its name suggests, the Board of Women's Organizations is a group composed of representatives of the three major women's organizations on campus, the Women's Editor of the Daily Maroon, and also representatives from each of the four classes in the University.

The Chairman of the Board is automatically a member of the Undergraduate Council, representing Women's activities on campus. The purpose of the Board of Women's Organizations, briefly, is to foster cooperation, to minimize duplication of effort, and to simplify mechanism among the Women's Organizations. Those acting as Chairmen of the Board have been: 1925-6, Martha Leutsker, 1926-7, Lucy Lamon; 1927-8, Harriet Keeney.

THE YOUNG WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

The Y. W. C. A. responds to the needs of University Women for Christian fellowship, nourished by the active part they take in working together in the various activities of the Association.

Active in the affairs of campus interest are four committees which plan opportunities for meeting new acquaintances, supervise plans for Freshmen, arrange religious services, and sponsor friendly dinners for women from other colleges.

Dealing with community interests are five committees, one of which centers its activities around student conferences and cooperation with community churches, while another specializes in volunteer work in the settlements, a third deals specifically with industrial problems, a fourth with campus social questions, and a fifth with education for the community responsibility and civic welfare.

Two more groups focus their work on international interests, problems and affiliations. Besides the group activities, the Y. W. C. A. offers an opportunity for making new acquaintances thru a variety of social functions, including Freshman Frolic. Quadrangle Fete, Inter-Hall Vaudeville, and the Christmas Bazaar, in all of which the women find an opportunity for service as well as for Christian fellowship.

The Federation of University Women has for its purpose the fostering of a spirit of "Friendliness, Cooperation, and Vision". Its organization includes all women on campus, for matriculation at the University automatically makes each woman a member. The Federation, due to its broad scope, affords an opportunity for the discussion of every subject which in any way affects the women on campus. These problems are subjects for open discussions held every alternate Tuesday evening. Such an interchange of ideas helps to create and to crystallize public opinion.

The Administrative work, with Elizabeth Wallace as Faculty Advisor, is carried on by a council of eight women elected annually, and a group of about thirty sponsors appointed by this council. The various lines of activities are guided by committees. Of these, the Upper Class Counselor performs the valuable function of providing each entering woman with an Upper Class Counselor, who introduces her to University life, and acts as friend and advisor. The Federation also sponsors teas at which these new women, both undergraduate and graduate, are introduced to each other, and to other campus women.

The Women's Speakers Club has enjoyed its most successful season during the past school year. It was primarily organized to give women members of the University an opportunity to speak in public. This year it has widened its scope of activities by holding joint meetings with the Men's Speakers Club. Debates were held on topics ranging from the most profound to the most ridiculous, and the success of the club is due to the more active interest taken in it by the members.

The Freshman Forum is a speakers group among the Freshman class. It has received much more than the usual amount of publicity this year because of the radical views expressed in debates at its meetings. Chicago papers have been fundamental in this publicity.

The able leadership of Donald Rosenthal, president of the Forum, and the conscientious guidance of Professor Burt, sponsor of the organization, have caused more interest in it than in past years.

THE STUDENT ASSOCIATION OF THE SCHOOL OF COMMERCE AND ADMINISTRATION

Social, academic, and professional contacts between and among the members of the School of Commerce and Administration have engendered a unity of thought and purpose in the directing of student life that often demands expression. The Student Association of the School of Commerce and Administration was created in nineteen hundred and twenty-three to meet the necessity for a medium thru which the student body might express its desires, offer criticisms, suggest improvements, and achieve a well rounded life which would afford opportunity to every student interest.

The Association is composed of every student in residence in the School of Commerce and Administration during the Autumn, Winter, and Spring Quarters. These members choose nine of their body to form the Council of the Association which actively directs the actions of the Association.

The desires of the student body created certain traditional duties upon the Council. Expressly, these consist of facilitating intellectual endeavor of its members along lines of practical application of student work; fostering and assisting in maintaining a professional attitude on the part of its members as well as promoting cooperation between faculty and students; providing and promoting congenial social relations and good fellowship between members of the student body and the faculty; and supervising and directing all student activities within the School of Commerce and Administration.

All this constitutes the work of the Student Association of the School of Commerce and Administration. It hopes for closer cooperation with the University in general.

The aim of the Political Science Club is to acquaint students taking Political Science in the University with political situations about the country thru the medium of speakers. The membership is composed of all students enrolled in the Political Science courses.

The meetings of the club are held several times each quarter. Mixers and smokers are held to get the club members more informally acquainted. The club considers various problems of political groups in the University, and acts as a medium between those in the University and those outside.

THE POETRY CLUB

G. H. Dillon . . . . . President

Alice Gillanders . . . . . Secretary

The Poetry Club is an informal organization composed of students, undergraduate and graduate, seriously interested in writing verse. Its meetings are held fortnightly at the homes of the members, and candidates are admitted after the club has voted favorably upon submitted specimens of their work. Many poets now well known are among the alumni. The founders and earliest members included Glenway Wescott, Elizabeth Madox Roberts, Yvor Winters, Maurice Lesemann, Pearl Andelson, Jessica North, and others who have since become generally recognized. Because of the quality of the work produced by its members, particularly as represented in an anthology of their poems published in 1923 by the Covici-McGee Company, the group has become nationally conspicuous, and enjoys a reputation more considerable than that of any other collegiate organization of its kind.

A series of lectures and readings by important poets is held each year under the auspices of the club. Early in 1924, it founded The Forge, which is generally recognized as one of the outstanding American poetry magazines.

One of the earliest organizations founded on the campus was Die Deutsche Gesellschaft. In 1924 it was reorganized to increase its activities, and during this past year it has been one of the most prominent organizations on campus. Membership includes every member of the University who is interested in German.

The club is devoted to acquainting its members with German literature, language and customs. Semi-monthly meetings are held, and the conversation is in German. Students are thus able to hear the language, and to practice it in a natural and informal atmosphere. At intervals, the club presents a number of dramatic performances.

The Home Economics Club of the University was organized with a twofold purpose in the minds of its charter members: first, to give the members of the Home Economics Department an opportunity to become better acquainted than classroom contacts permit, and second, to create and sustain a professional interest in Home Economics. The first is accomplished by social functions; such as, teas, dinners and parties. The second is accomplished by speakers in the Home Economics field, and thru discussions of current Home Economics publications.

During the past year, many prominent educators spoke before the club. Among these were Miss Hess, state supervisor of economics, Miss Swain of the Chicago Normal School, and Dr. Blunt, of the University of Chicago.

With the increased enrollment of women in the School of Commerce and Administration, a need of a social organization arose, and in the fall of 1925, the Comad Club was organized. The purpose of the Club is to further social and business relationships among the women of the School of Commerce and Administration, and to assist and advise incoming women, and to cooperate with the Student Association of the School in sponsoring student affairs. Meetings are held every other Wednesday.

THE FELLOWS CLUB

LEMUEL C. McGEE . . . . . President
MARION SCHAFFNER . . . . . Secretary

The Fellows Club comprises holders of both Fellowships and Assistantships in various departments of the Graduate Schools.

The aim of the organization is the furtherance of broader educational functions of the University, by fostering a definite and consistent fellowship among all of the fellows and assistants from the various departments. A further aim has been the securing of an adequate center for graduate life on campus. The Club Home, opened this year for all graduates of the institution, is a realization of this hope.

The Fellows club resulted from the actuation of the idea of such an organization by members of the graduate faculty, and materialized thru the particular cooperation of Dean Laing and Dean Gale. The first meeting was called in the spring of 1926. The organization operates under a constitution and an executive committee composed of representatives from the different phases of graduate work on the campus.

Two or three dinner meetings each quarter bring together the representatives of diversified graduate work in the Fellows Club to hear a speaker invited from the faculty of the University, or one of merit selected from other fields of educational endeavor.

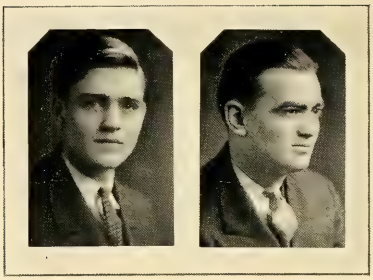

THE CHANNING CLUB

GEORGE READ . . . . . President
BEATRICE GALE . . . . . Vice-President
STANLEY ANDERSON . . . . . Secretary

The Channing Club meets every Sunday afternoon at six o'clock in the first Unitarian Church for an informal talk and discussion. Here, University students and young professional workers gather to discuss subjects in which they are interested, such as, "Education and the Business World", "The Greatest Thing in Literature", "Symbolism in Religion", and so forth. The discussions are led either by the members themselves, or by some outside authority.

Preceeding the regular discussions, a light supper is served in front of the open fire in the club room of the church. Members have an opportunity to become acquainted with fellow workers in the other departments. About once a month, the meeting becomes a purely social one, with a Hallowe'en party or a picnic three or four times a year. The club members invite their friends to dances given by this club or other groups in the Unitarian Federation of the city.

During Y. P. R. U. week in February, the Club joined with the Chicago Federation in giving two one-act plays to raise money for a summer conference.

ST. MARK'S SOCIETY

Russell Whitney	President
Adele Whitfield	Vice-President
Rebekah Green	Secretary
Theodore Harley	Treasurer

As the local unit of the National Student Council, an Episcopal movement which is national in colleges, the purpose of the St. Mark's Society on campus may be said to be five-fold: namely, church attendance, religious education, church extension, service, and meetings.

The work of the Society during the year 1926-27 has been chiefly centered in Sunday afternoon discussions and social hours led by prominent speakers and religious leaders. A communion service for the Episcopal students on campus is held every Sunday morning at nine o'clock in the Thornedike Hilton Memorial Chapel.

The new Church House, and the cooperation and hospitality of Dr. and Mrs. Street have done much for the advancement of the society, and have aided greatly in the creation of fellowship, college worship, and religious enthusiasm.

In the fall, the St. Mark's Society sponsored a dinner for the Bishop of London at which there were a large number of students and representatives of the faculty. The society cooperated with the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., and the Westminster Club in arranging for Vesper service in the Bond chapel on Wednesday afternoons during the winter, and in arranging for the production of "The Admiral" by the Kennedy players in March.

The Episcopal Church House

ST. MARK'S SOCIETY

The headquarters of the work of the Episcopal Church at the University is the Church House, which is located on the northeast corner of Kimbark Avenue and 58th Street. In addition to being the residence of the Student Chaplain, the Church House has a large room which forms the Chaplain's study, and where student groups can meet, a reading room for the students, and a small chapel. The Chaplain and Mrs. Street are at home every Sunday afternoon during the school year. There is generally a speaker who gives a talk at 4:30, and a light lunch is served. In addition to the services of the Episcopal Churches near the University, the Student Chaplain holds a celebration of the Holy Communion every Sunday morning at 9:00 for the benefit of those living on or near the campus. At the present time, thru the kindness of the Theological Seminary, this service is being held in the Thorndike Hilton Memorial Chapel on 58th Street near University Avenue. There is a brief address at this service, but it is always over at 9:30. There is also a celebration of the Holy Communion in the Chapel at the Church House on Thursdays and Holydays at 7:00 a. m.

The Student Chaplain is the Rev. Charles L. Street, Ph.D. He has been placed at the University by the Episcopal Church to be of any service in his power to any student whom he can help, whether they are members of the Episcopal Church or not, and he will be glad to be called upon at any time. He may be reached at the Church House, or thru the offices of the Y. M. C. A. in the Reynolds Club.

The Christian Science Society is organized and conducted in accordance with the Manual of the Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.

The purpose of the society is "to enlighten the University community concerning Christian Science, and to stimulate helpful intercourse among the members of the community interested in Christian Science". Members of the faculty, instructors, students, or employees of the University may become members of this society, provided they are making an earnest study of Christian Science.

The University public is invited to attend the meetings and to make use of the study room. The meetings are held at 7:30 p. m. every other Tuesday evening in Thorndyke Hilton Memorial Chapel. The study room, hours twelve to one o'clock, Monday to Friday, in 205 Swift Hall, contains the Bible and Christian Science literature that may be read or borrowed.

The Westminster Club has enjoyed a year of unparalleled activity and success. Dr. Theodore M. Carlisle, the director, has met with hearty response on the part of the Presbyterian students on campus. The year's program, including numerous interesting talks, discussions and informal social gatherings, has been loyally upheld by the members, a host of friends, and members of the faculty. The cabinet, which was largely responsible for the success of the club, was composed of Eugene Staley, Fae Thorne, Helen Engle, Vincent Cohenour, Virginia Eggers, David Prosser, Louise Engel, Virginia Land, Elva Brown, Laura Reynolds, Willard Hague, and Theodore Gasteyer.

The club was organized for the purpose of maintaining church relations, wholesome social contacts, and inspirational and informational programs. It has been very successful in carrying out these plans.

The society gets its name from John Henry Cardinal Newman, famous as a churchman and scholar, and one of the leaders of the Oxford movement.

The object of the society is to unite the Catholic students of the University into a common body, to foster their spiritual, intellectual and social interests along appropriate lines, to assist the University and its members wherever possible, to encourage the ideals of American democracy, and to partake in the general work of the Holy Roman Catholic Church.

The society was founded in the spring quarter of 1926, and since that time has sponsored lectures by noted members of the Catholic clergy and laity. The meetings of the society are open to all students, regardless of religious belief. Membership is open to Catholic students without formal election.

The members of this society have not sacrificed fellowship and humanity for learning. The meetings of the Undergraduate Phi Beta Kappa are social gatherings whose congeniality is made deeper by the mutual knowledge that no one is afraid to learn and to think, or to share with his friends his learning and his thoughts.

THE WESLEY FOUNDATION

STEWART KENNEY	President
RUTH BOYD	Vice-President
THOMAS MARSHALL	Treasurer
GERTRUDE HOLMES	Secretary

The Wesley Foundation Methodist Students' Club was re-organized in December, 1926, after several months interim of non-activity. Officers were elected, and a program planned for the coming year. The work of the organization is to be directed thru four executive committees: membership, social, finance, and publicity. A general plan of combining a short business meeting with a group discussion or social hour is being followed in the meetings.

The aims of the Wesley Foundation are: to create a feeling of group consciousness among the Methodist students in the University, to serve them as a means of social and religious development and expression, and to foster cooperation between Methodist Churches in the community and the Methodist students in the University.

All Methodist students are cordially invited to join the Wesley Foundation and identify themselves with the organization in the work which it is undertaking in the University.

The Filipino Triangle Club was organized principally for the purpose of helping Filipino students who are attending the University. In a strange land, these students usually find it difficult to get acquainted with the new environment at first, and it is thru the Filipino Triangle Club that the newcomers are helped by their countrymen who have been here longer.

Another purpose of the club is to give the American public information regarding the native land of its members, to promote a better understanding between the two peoples, and to correct, as far as possible, such misinformation as gets into the press.

The club has cooperated with other organizations in the University, and has become a living part of the campus.

The Kindergarten Primary Club was first organized in 1920 for the purpose of establishing a social unit within the department that would enable the girls to become better acquainted with each other.

A chairman and five committee members were elected this year from the undergraduates to serve as an executive council. Sub committees were appointed within the club to take charge of various social activities of the year.

During the Autumn Quarter, the club gave an informal tea for its members, and sponsored an elaborate party for the entire College of Education. During the Winter Quarter, a Bridge and Bunco tea was given. Plans are being made for a series of social activities for the Spring Quarter.

It is thru these social events that the club accomplishes its purpose of fostering greater friendships in the training for professional life.

The Freshman Women's Club was organized for a twofold purpose: to bring the Freshman women into closer contact with each other so that friendships might be formed during the first year of college life, and to acquaint them with the University, its ideals and its traditions. In order to carry on its purpose the club carried on purely social activity.

The women of this year's Freshman Class were the first to start out under a new constitution which the Board of Women's Organizations provided for it. All Freshman women are automatically members, but the club is governed by a council of twenty-four, chosen at the beginning of the autumn quarter as a cross section of the class. The officers are elected by the club at large.

THE CAP AND GOWN

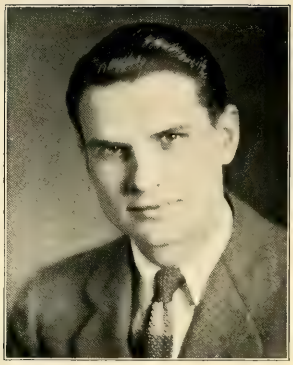

Representing the lives and affairs of several thousand students at the University of Chicago, the Cap and Gown 1927 stands as a record of their progress and achievements during the past year.

The task of publishing the Cap and Gown 1927 has been one which involved the assistance and cooperation of many people in addition to those who are regular members of the staff. To all of these the Cap and Gown owes its appreciation. Among those whom we most wish to recognize are Mr. Heald, Alumni Secretary, Mr. Morgenstern of the Publicity Department, Mr. Filbey of the Department of Public Relations, Mr. Dickerson, retiring secretary of the Board of Trustees, Mr. Stevens of the President's office, Mrs. Stagg, and the deans and officers of administration who have in any way given their assistance. Mr. Mathisson of the Standard Photo Engraving Co., has been of invaluable service to the editor and members of the staff. They unite in this expression of their appreciation of Mr. Mathisson's unfailing interest and helpful advice in planning and publishing this book. For the art work upon which the success of the book so largely dedends we are indebted to Victoria Smith and the art staff which worked under her direction. For the clever lines in the Rap and Pound we express our appreciation to George Gruskin.

Excellent work has been done by the Freshmen and Sophomores on the staff. Because of the quality of the work and the keenness of the competition, selections for next year's staff will be very difficult to make. Among those Sophomores who have done exceptionally good work are Charles Warner, George Reed, John Glynn, Marjorie Williamson, Melba Schumacher, and Elizabeth White.

WHAT OF IT?

JOHNSON FILLS CARNIVAL POST LEFT BY LEWIS

PROM PASSED TO ETERNITY WITH PAVE OF GLORY

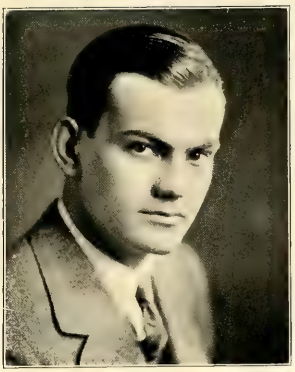

GIVE NOMINATION TEAS TOMORROW

KEARNEY STAGES OWN PLAY HERE

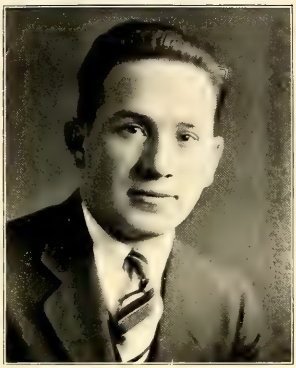

It is rather difficult to write three hundred words about the Daily Maroon without either becoming sentimental and gushing about our accomplishments or becoming modest and neglecting them. A plain statement of facts seems to be the ideal middle course.

1. Sporting extras every Saturday for football games.
2. Special homecoming edition sent to 10,000 alumni.
3. A special feature page every Friday throughout the year.
4. A Christmas edition of 60 pages which set a new high mark for undergraduate publications. The story of this edition was carried throughout the United States by the Associated Press.
5. More eight-page newspapers than ever before.
6. "What of It"—a breezy front page column that has proved itself. An innovation.
7. "In Brief"—a daily summary of world news. Another innovation.
8. A "Celebrities Number" of The Daily Maroon in magazine form. Over six months of work on this edition. The Associated Press carried stories of this number to the "four corners".
9. An editorial policy that has strived ever to advance student interests; a policy that has received commendation from the faculty and undergraduate body in equal proportion.
10. A sport page that has "covered" the Big Ten.
11. A "Whistle" that has averaged over thirty contributions daily. Previously thirty contributions equalled two weeks earnest soliciting.
12. A greater news coverage than ever before. At least nineteen "hot" front page stories over a five-column paper.

And considering that these few accomplishments have all been confined to two quarters activity and that, at this writing, we are ready to start on the last, and best, three months—well—that makes three hundred words.

THE PHOENIX

The Phoenix this year has attempted to disregard what has been the tone of other College publications and be purely local. With this in mind it opened in October with an expose of the organizations on campus. This was followed by the Football number which met with great approval. The succeeding issues have tried to bring in local affairs and people. The Literary number was a revival of the Circle, which last year was combined with the Phoenix in order to include all types of material. This issue met with interest on the part of the student body and proved almost as popular as the literateur, Phil Allan, whose picture graced the cover.

The Board of the Phoenix has functioned well this year and has had more meetings than any in its history. No amount of praise is too high for the manner in which the business end of the magazine has been handled this year. The business staff have made possible a larger and better magazine with an increase in cuts and color plates.

Next year with the re-organization plan in force and the magazine under such able guidance as Mr. Lovett, Mrs. Flint, and Mr. O'Hara it should strike not only a tone, which is more in keeping with the University, but strike out as a leader in a new field.

During the year the Phoenix was Secretary-Treasurer of the College Comics Association and acted as host to the convention. The Old Bird was chosen as President of the Association during the coming year.

The Forge is the only literary magazine on the campus now that the Circle is combined with the Phoenix. To maintain a high grade of verse it is necessary to accept contributions from the established poets all over the country. We are, nevertheless, always anxious to publish undergraduate work of merit. The Forge is probably the third largest magazine of its kind in the United States.

A Synopsis of "Wallie Watch Out"

The fair realm of Ezykale is bankrupt, and it is necessary to fill the coffers of the treasury quickly. The only way out is to have the King marry a wealthy girl; therefore he is sent to the University of Chicago as Wallie Ashburn, '29.

Wallie is a bit verdant—just the material for a high-powered rushing committee. And who should head the rushing forces but Jeff Adams, a man who left school for a year to work and, like all Chicago men, got a good job—as Prime Minister—in Ezykale; but Wallie doesn't know him. And, before we forget, the heroine—Louise—the ideal co-ed. It is she who is to be Wallie's rich bride. But she and Jeff have other ideas—and they get together. Meanwhile Wallie meets a flapper of the new school—Prudence Chapel—and the two just know they're meant for each other.

Wallie gets pledged—he suffers as only a Freshman can suffer—he tries to get Louise—he plays the King at a big campus fete, a cross section of Florida life in the boom period transplanted to the campus—and all the time he thinks Prudence is the best yet. And Louise won't have him—she's in love with Jeff. Anyway, two old men have come from Ezykale with a message that the people no longer want a king; and glad they are that the people feel that way, for they see Wallie on the downward path with the rest of this younger generation. So Wallie and Prudence are left to work out their ideas.

THE DRAMATIC ASSOCIATION

The Dramatic Association began its third year of amalgamation with two years of achievement behind it and plans for further progress well established. Its beginning, in 1924, when the Gargoyles and Tower Players joined to form the Association, had been marked by the assigning to the Director of Activities of quarters for the Dramatic Association. A year ago, largely through the efforts of George Bates, then chairman of the Association, the Tower room adjoining the Reynolds Theater stage was furnished distinctively in the early American period. Here the Association has frequent meetings for the transaction of business, the reading of plays, the conducting of rehearsals, and the entertaining of guests at social gatherings.

A third branch of the Association was formed in 1925, when one hundred-forty young women petitioned for admission, their branch to be known as the Mirror.

This year the Dramatic Association has designed and had built, at a cost approximately $800.00, unit sets of scenery for use in Mandel Hall, not only for productions by the Association but to be lent without charge to other worthy University organizations. Indeed, practically all scenery and costumes are designed by student members of the Association, and almost everything of this type is made by members in workshop.

A selected company from the Association read George Kelly's new American comedy, "Daisy Mayme", before members of the Quadrangle Club, in March. Those reading the roles were Eleanor Metzel, Dorothy Hartford, Marion McGann, Ruth DeWitt, Mollie Krom, Fred Handschy, Hadley Kerr, and Walter Williamson.

The spring quarter plans included laboratory staging of original plays from Mr. O'Hara's play-writing course, as well as informal revivals of other plays.

"HERE WE ARE"

The Mirror, that branch of the Dramatic Association which is exclusively for women, although only in the second year of its existence, has made for itself a place in college dramatics which is unique. The Mirror has a peculiar message to express concerning the college girl which it believes can be expressed adequately only by the girls themselves.

The organization is directed by an Executive Board of which Betty Graham is president, Ruth Burtis, general manager, and Zoe-May Sutherland, secretary. Twenty-eight members were added to list of one hundred and forty charter members after the first annual production, each one of these girls having done a definite service for Mirror.

In its First Annual Production given on March 5 and 6 of last year the Mirror asked the question "Where Are We Going?", and answered it very pleasingly by a series of delightful dances, lyrics and skits in settings and costumes remarkable for their simplicity.

The Second Annual Production of Mirror, "Here We Are", presents the college girl as she sees herself.

The season of 1926-1927 marks the eighteenth year since the organization of this association to provide opportunities for the students and members of the university community to enjoy recitals of orchestral and chamber music at a convenient hour and place.

The concerts of the last season have featured such artists as the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in a series of eight programs, Ernest Dohanyi, pianist, the A Capella Choir, and Dusolina Giannini, soprano. There has grown up the custom of delivering short lectures on music just preceding the concerts. Mr. Mack Evans, the director of the University Choir, took charge of these lecture-recitals which were given in the Music room of Mitchell Tower, and were open to the patrons of the concert.

The demand of the students and general public was such that all but fifty of the seats were taken by season-ticket holders before the first concert—a proof of the popularity of the work of the association. Special half rates are allowed only to students who buy season tickets.

INTERCLASS HOP

Ida Noyes was transformed into a Japanese garden for the spring Interclass Hop held on May 28, 1926. Parasols, cherry blossoms, and everything that had a "touch of the Orient" were used to carry out the effect and, fortunately, it neither passed or fell short of the perfect result. Charles Dornberger and his orchestra contributed the best music since many Hops past, and, with the Program Maroon, was the only modern complement to the dance.

INTERFRATERNITY SING

The Interfraternity Sing is unique in that very few other colleges or universities have any institution similar to it. At the University of Chicago, it is probably the only event of the year that savors of the true tradition and life of the school, and it is most popular both from the point of spectators and participants. Last year ten thousand people witnessed the Sing while almost two thousand took part in it.

The fraternities, after drawing lots for positions on the program, are introduced by the Manager of the Sing. Each fraternity then marches to the fountain in Hutchinson Court, where the spectacle is always given, and sings two of its songs. The greatest emphasis is laid on the number of men representing their fraternities rather than the perfection and finish with which the songs are given. At the sing of June 12, 1926, Psi Upsilon had 145 men present, Delta Tau Delta had 126, Phi Kappa Psi had 119, and Delta Kappa Epsilon was fourth with 113.

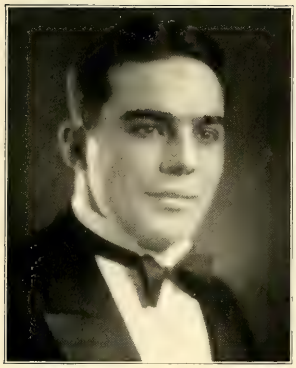

HARMON MURPHY

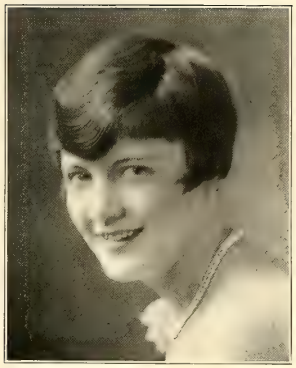

PLEDGE DANCE

On the night of October 29, 1926 the Score Club and Skull and Crescent, the two Sophomore honor societies, combined to give this first important dance of the Fall season, in honor of the club and fraternity pledges to whom it gave the first taste of social life at the University. The Shoreland hotel ball-room, which was to be the scene a month later of the Interfraternity Ball, was the stage for this dance.

The ball-room was decorated with club emblems and paper streamers fell from the ceiling in showers. The programs carried out the exalting of the pledges by being dedicated to them, and gayety ruled supreme.

INTERFRATERNITY BALL

This first formal of the season was as successful as the expectations for it were high. At the Shoreland hotel, and with two excellent orchestras, the Ball took up the baton on November 24, 1926 where the Pledge Dance had dropped it, and, where the one initiated social life of the year among the fraternities, the Interfraternity Ball climaxed it. The ball-room was decorated with shields of the different fraternities; the entertainment was given by a male quartet which sang their songs.

For the first time in the history of the Ball, there was a grand march taking, this time, the form of a huge "C". The march was led by James Cusack and Elizabeth Graham, William Harrington and Caryl Francis, William Cuthbertson and Esmee Flack, Tom Paul and Sylvia Sack. As the "C" was formed, President and Mrs. Mason walked between the points of the letter, and after a slight pause, all joined in singing the Alma Mater. Then, the dance again.

SETTLEMENT NIGHT

The twenty-second Settlement Drive came to an end on December 4, 1926 with a net total of $4749.08. The proceeds from Settlement Night alone were $1013.12 with expenses amounting to $475, over $100 less than last year. $500 was turned in by each of the winning teams which were captained by Herberta Van Pelt and John Marshall. Ruth Holmes and Burton McRoy led the two teams coming in second. Other sources of the total income were Tag Day, balloon sales, and tea dances. The latter, which proved to be very successful, were given at the Psi U, the Phi Kappa Sigma, and the Phi Psi houses.

This year the chairman of the drive turned Mandel Hall into a three ring circus with dancing in Hutchinson Commons, vaudeville on the stage, and booths lining the halls of the Promenade. The booths were managed by Iron Mask, Skull and Crescent, Score Club, Sign of the Sickle and the Sophomore Class. The stage shows, which headed the events of the evening, consisted of two bills of eight acts each, and were offered entirely by local campus talent. Sammy Stewart's nine piece orchestra supplied the music for dancing in the Commons where the incessant beat of the Chicago Stomp furnished background for the Circus-Carnival taking place in the corridors outside.

SETTLEMENT NIGHT

In the midst of this revelry the Settlement Drive came to a close. Though its purpose was primarily to gain money for the Settlement House and the children there, the method adopted made it one of the most enjoyable social evenings of the season. The drive was a success not only from the standpoint of those who had a good time, but also in the eyes of those who gave their time and effort to managing everything to the end that the little unfortunates "behind the yards" might be helped.

RESIDENCE HALLS

THE CAMPUS GROUP

KELLY HALL

The first women's dormitory on campus! In May, 1892, Mrs. Elizabeth G. Kelly gave to the University $50,000 for a residence hall for University women. Kelly Hall was completed in the summer of 1893 and occupied by students October first of that year. Miss Marion Talbot was chosen to be the first head.

BEECHER HALL

Soon after Mrs. Kelly's contribution for the first dormitory in 1892, Mrs. Mary Beecher likewise gave $50,000 for the erection of another residence hall. The construction of Beecher Hall went on at the same time as that of Kelly and it, too, was opened to students in the Fall of 1893. Miss Elizabeth Wallace became the first head of Beecher Hall.

Smith Knox Cook

THE CAMPUS GROUP

FOSTER HALL

Nancy Foster Hall, given to the University by Mrs. Nancy S. Foster, was completed in October, 1893. Later, in 1900, when plans were made to enlarge the hall Mrs. Foster generously requested the Trustees to send the bill to her. Altogether her gift amounted to $83,000. Miss Myra Reynolds was the first head of Foster Hall.

GREEN HALL

In 1898 Mrs. Elizabeth G. Kelly again showed her interest in the University by giving another contribution for a women's dormitory. This hall was to be called Green Hall in honor of Mrs. Kelly's parents. The foundation for the hall had been put in between Kelly and Beecher Halls six years before by contributions from a number of women. Miss Marion Talbot left Kelly Hall to become the first head at Green.

THE OFF-CAMPUS HALLS

GREENWOOD HALL

As the University enrollment grew the need for additional residence halls for women increased. Consequently, in 1910, the University extended its hand across the Midway and transformed an apartment building into Greenwood Hall. Miss Langley was selected to be the initial head.

KENWOOD HOUSES

Far across campus on Kenwood Avenue are two large, grey houses, known as North and South Kenwood. These have been University dormitories since 1919 when they were taken over for the women of the University, after having been used as S. A. T. C. headquarters during the war. Miss McAuly holds the position of head for both houses.

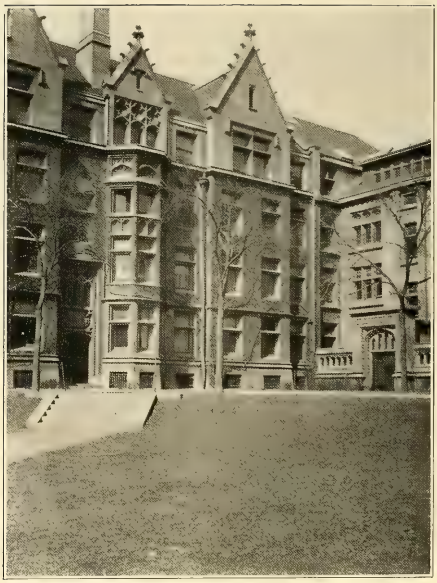

Mlle. Perreproud Meyerhoff Halbert

THE OFF-CAMPUS HALLS

LA MAISON FRANCAISE

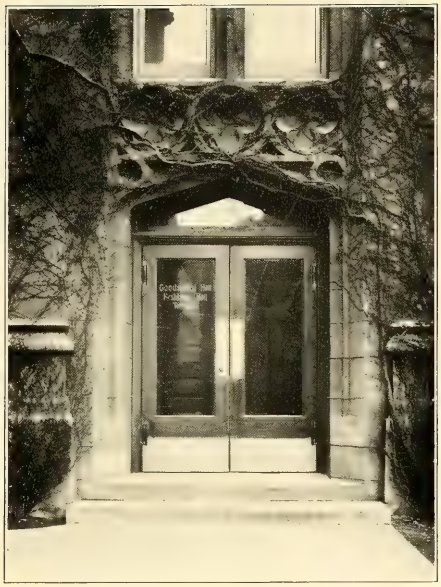

An old house made of yellowish bricks, built at the end of the last century, has been for the past eight years the abode of University women interested in the study of French. The French government takes an active interest in the French House and has made contributions for it. Distinguished French people, passing through Chicago, are entertained at the "Maison Francaise". Since the time it was founded, June, 1919, Mademoiselle Perreproud has served as directress.

HITCHCOCK HALL

Of what does the social life of Hitchcock Hall consist? Mainly of those impromptu gatherings which are so appropriately termed "Sessions". A Hitchcock man studies and goes to his classes to pass the time. He spends his evenings in being educated if he is so inclined.

These "Sessions", if taken alone, would furnish too heavy a diet. Cognizance of this fact is taken in the provision for more elaborate events such as the Football Teas, the Smokers, and the Hitchcock Hall Dance.

GOODSPEED HALL

Goodspeed Hall takes its name from Dr. Thomas Wakefield Goodspeed, historian of the University. The Goodspeed tradition is a real one to the members of the hall. Tangible evidence of this fact is found in the many volumes of Goodspeed authorship in the hall library. Each year a family gathering is held to allow the men to become intimately acquainted with the rest of the Goodspeed household. This and other similar events comprise the social life of Goodspeed Hall.

MILITARY SCIENCE

LIEUT. GILDART

In many respects the year which is just coming to a close has been one of the most successful in the history of the University's unit of the Reserve Officers Training Corps.

Due to the efforts of Major Barrows, professor of Military Science and Tactics, the department has continually improved until it is in pace with those in some of the larger state universities. During the academic year 1926-7 twenty-four men received commissions, giving the department an eighty-four percent increase over last year. Starting with the year 1923-4 this percentage of annual increase has been sixty percent, sixty-two percent, and finally eighty-four percent.

The military ability and generalship of the Chicago unit was shown at Camp Sparta this summer. During six weeks of intense trials the members of the Chicago group proved to the satisfaction of the camp commander, Captain S. G. Brady, that they were capable military leaders. In fact this unit was distinguished as being the best of the several units represented.

At the present time this unit has over two hundred thousand dollars worth of equipment. This includes seven pieces of artillery, topographical instruments, motors, horses, and other equipment necessary for a department charged with the responsibility of training soldiers. Greenwood Field, provided by the University, is used for drilling and playing polo.

THE POLO TEAM

BOOM

POTATOES

At the University of Chicago "athletics" means one thing above all others—and that is the Grand Old Man. Having been at the head of the department of athletics in this institution practically since its beginning, Mr. Stagg has stood out firmly for those principles of clean play and good sportsmanship for which the University's athletic teams are known all over the land. His famous words to every team: "Put the best you have into it, and when you have done the best you can do you have done all that is expected of you. Then whether you win or whether you lose, do it like men"—are most expressive of the ideal of athletics in the University of Chicago.

ATHLETICS

AMOS ALONZO STAGG

Athletic Director Since 1892

In the first days of the University, President Harper, attempting to build up a faculty composed of the best men in every field of educational activity, asked Mr. Stagg, a student of his while he was teaching at Yale, to come to Chicago as Athletic Director and to bring to the Midway School the ideals and principles with which they both believed collegiate athletics should be carried on. Mr. Stagg accepted the responsibility. He came, and immediately began to bring about the marvelous change that has since taken place throughout the west.

He is now the oldest coach in the country, in point of actual years of service. He is everywhere looked upon as the highest authority in football and track. Here at Chicago he is synonymous with the best that the University stands for.

President Harper, just before his death in 1906, in a tribute to Mr. Stagg written for the Cap and Gown of that year, said: "His intense love of pure sport, his incorruptable spirit, his indefatigable effort, his broad-minded zeal and his absolute fairness of mind and honesty of heart, have exerted an influence upon University and college athletics that has been felt far and wide and has produced results of which we may all reasonably be proud."

Hauer, Barton, H. K. Long (Ceach), Herion (Manager), Johnstone, Henzalin.
Razabek, Fenkl, Kawalski, Rondinella, Nystrom.

THE INTERSCHOLASTICS

The University has, during its thirty-five years of existence, created many great institutions, and has made itself famous in almost every phase of education. One of the most far-reaching and spectacular of its accomplishments is, without doubt, the system of Interscholastics conducted by the Athletic Department.

Every March, for nine successive years, championship winning basketball teams have come from almost every State in the Union, to compete in the National Interscholastic Tournament. Again, in June, the cream of the high school and academy athletes congregate at Chicago for Mr. Stagg's World's greatest Interscholastic Track and Field meet. Since 1902, this has been one of the most talked-of athletic events of every season, and in it, each year, several records are sure to be broken.

Besides these two older and more famous events, there are Interscholastics of like character in many of the minor sports. These too are becoming National in scope and in interest and may some day assume the proportions of their two great predecessors.

This year basketball tournament was unusually interesting. The weather couldn't have been better; the boys were well entertained and the whole affair was excellently planned and managed. Forty-three teams representing thirty-three states had accepted invitations to compete. Of these thirty-three were state champions. The race was close from start to finish, and as the rounds progressed the interest became more keen. Finally, out of a number of excellent possibilities, Morton High School of Cicero, Illinois, after a desperate game in the last round, came out the winner and went home, when it was all over, in a march of glory surrounded by a band of rooters consisting of a good part of the population of Cicero. Batesville, Arkansas, was eased into second place when she was defeated by Morton 18 to 16. Florence, Mississippi, winning from Huron, South Dakota, won third place in the major tournament. The consolation tournament was won by Northeast High of Kansas City, Missouri. Athens, Kansas, was second and Gilbert, Arizona, third. At all the games Old Bartlett was filled to capacity, while, on the last two evenings the crowds were lined up on the sidewalk waiting to get in.

The Illinois Game

THE ATHLETIC FIELD AND STADIUM

Back in 1892 or thereabouts, one Marshall Field, a prominent merchant of this city, gave several blocks of land to the then infant University of Chicago. A part of this land was set apart, by the trustees of the University, for an athletic field, and was named "Marshall Field" after its donor. As the campus around it began to grow, and new buildings began to appear on the adjacent land, wooden stands and bleechers for spectators of Mr. Stagg's athletic contests were also built, and so the University developed, and athletics, under the Old Man's able direction, grew with it, until the capacious and ultra-modern stands are now to be seen where there were once a few small wooden benches. In the course of the history of the field, it was decided that since it was Mr. Stagg who "made" athletics at Chicago, and for that matter in the Middle West, the field should be named after him, and so it is to "Stagg Field" that the crowds come every fall, and where some of football's greatest battles have been fought.

The latest step in the development of the Stadium was the building of the new north stands, to correspond with and to supplement the stands on the west side. To do this the field was turned around so that the goal posts are on the east and west ends instead of being on the north and south ends as they had formerly been. The new stadium also made it necessary to build a new and different type of quarter-mile track, which is now almost completed. The stands themselves, built in the most modern way, of concrete and steel are 144 feet long and 150 feet deep, contain seats for 23,000 people, and made a seating capacity of 50,000 for this fall's games. This is an increase of 15,000 seats over the total capacity of the field as it was before the erection of the new stands.

According to the plans, the seating capacity is to be raised to a total of 70,000 seats by the erection of additional concrete stadia on the east. All of which goes to show the importance that athletics have assumed as an under-graduate activity and as a public attraction.

Nelson Henry Norgren has the distinction of being the only man to receive twelve major letters from the University of Chicago. He is now head basketball coach of the University and when it's time to start coaching the football team, is one of Coach Stagg's right hand men.

Campbell Dixon, while in college, was also a three sports man. He coached the Minnesota football team the first fall after graduation, but in 1925 returned to Chicago where he has been one of Mr. Stagg's most able assistants.

Dr. Earl D. Huntington has, since he graduated, been a practicing physician in Chicago. He returns to the Midway every fall to have a hand in the preparation of the team. As an undergraduate he had an enviable football record. He is now head Freshman coach and varsity scout.

Fred Marvin Henderson was in 1925 the captain of the football team. He is now in the University Law School and last fall coached the Varsity line. He was one of the finest football players the University ever had.

Daniel Jerome Fisher is a geology instructor in the University. He was, while in college, a football and track star, and was conference champion in the pole vault. He is now chief assistant to Dr. Huntington as Freshman football coach.

Amos Alonzo Stagg, Jr., after an eventful athletic career as an undergraduate, began work as assistant football coach and Freshman track coach under his famous father. He is doing most remarkable work in both fields.

CAPTAIN MARKS

Captain Wally Marks has been, throughout his entire undergraduate career, one of the so-called "big men" on campus. His football record alone wins him a place in the University hall of fame. After four years as a Lindblom High School halfback culminating in his last year with the captaincy and a place on the All Cook County Team, Wally came to the Midway in 1921.

Here his accomplishments have been as great. He was the backbone of the Maroon attack, but his defensive play particularly against passes, was remarkable. His leadership as captain was undoubtedly one of the greatest factors in keeping up the team's morale throughout the hard and most unsuccessful 1927 season.

Captain Marks, besides his athletic activities as football, baseball, and basketball letter man, is R. O. T. C. cadet major. He was president of the Sophomore class and has been a member of Owl and Serpent, Iron Mask, and Skull and Crescent.

KENNETH ALLAN ROUSE

CAPTAIN-ELECT ROUSE

Professor Linn, in his column in the Herald-Examiner, told a story about Captain-elect Ken Rouse that pretty well shows how much he means to the Old Man's football team.

It was in the second half of the Pennsylvania game and the Quaker backs were going through the Maroon line as if there were no one there to stop them. Ken was out of the game for during the second quarter he had been injured and was even after the half still in a semi-daze. One of the Freshmen became so excited about the condition of things on the field that he remarked to Coach Stagg, "If Rouse were in there he could stop that". Mr. Stagg stopped chewing his finger nails long enough to answer, "Rouse has only half his senses", and added, "At that, he would not be out of place in that line."

Besides his impressive football record both at Chicago and in Lindblom High, Ken has been active in almost all phases of Undergraduate activities.

THE FLORIDA GAME

October 2. The Maroon 1926 football team opened its season with a 12-6 victory over Florida. The Stagg men gained most of their ground by means of end runs and forward passes. The Southern team also had a pass attack which temporarily baffled the varsity.

Early in the first quarter Marks shot a long pass to Apitz who eluded the Florida safety man for the first touchdown of the season. McDonough's place-kick dropped just short of the bar. By a series of line smashes and several completed passes Florida took the ball to the Maroon 15 yard line, and from there proceeded to drive its way across the Maroon goal line and even the score. Stanley's place kick failed. Later in the quarter Chicago scored again. A pass, Marks to Spence, placed the ball on Florida's eleven yard line. Then, after three line plunges had failed, Stan Rouse stepped back and drop kicked between the bars for three more points. Toward the end of the third quarter Marks tossed a pass to Apitz, and Chicago made its final score as Rouse booted another drop kick. The final quarter brought no more scores and the first game of the season ended Chicago 12, Florida 6.

THE MARYLAND GAME

October 9. In the second intersectional game of the year, Chicago swamped Maryland 21-0. 36,000 fans watched a one sided but interesting game in which the Maroons played some fine football.

Maryland received the kick-off and made two first downs. Then Kassler passed to Snyder and the ball was on Chicago's 35 yard line. Here, a Maryland backfield man fumbled, and the eastern team lost its only chance to score when an alert Maroon player fell on the ball. In the second quarter after Maryland had punted from her own 15 yard line, McDonough ran the ball back 25 yards. Then Apitz surprised his opponents, caught a long pass from Marks and sprinted 20 yards for a touchdown. McDonough added the extra point from a place kick. From then on there was no more scoring until the last quarter. Maryland was forced to punt to Anderson who ran the ball back to the 36 yard line. Gleason, Anderson and Leyers gained a total of 20 yards on plunges. Then Gleason went through the center of the line for Chicago's second touchdown. Rouse kicked the goal. In the closing minutes of play Libby, Coach Stagg's Sophomore star, carried the ball over the Southerners' goal line for the last touchdown, and the final score was 21-0.

THE PENNSYLVANIA GAME

October 16. The Maroon football team journeyed to Philadelphia, as the underdogs in the intersectional game between Chicago and Pennsylvania.

The first quarter was marked by Chicago's experimental playing, the Penn men being thrown for numerous losses and their deceptive criss-cross plays being stopped. Toward the end of the first quarter, Murphy, a Pennsylvania halfback, broke loose around the right end and ran 32 yards. This run started a march which was a mixture of passes and plunges, that ended in the Pennsylvania quarter crossing the Chicago goal line for the first touchdown. Pennsylvania kicked goal.

The second quarter was a see-saw battle with the ball remaining in Pennsylvania territory the majority of the time.

The second half started with Pennsylvania receiving the kick-off. The Red and Blue carried the ball to Chicago's one yard line; but here they fumbled. After the recovery by Apitz, Rouse kicked to Pennsylvania. The Quakers, taking the ball, started a series of drives which resulted in three touchdowns. The easterners won the game 27-0 and Chicago has still to be the victor over Pennsylvania.

THE PURDUE GAME

October 23. At last Purdue has accomplished her ambition, she has beaten Chicago. In about ten plays she raced down the field sixty-nine yards for a touchdown. Beautiful end runs by Wilcox and line bucks by Koransky carried the ball to Chicago's four yard line. Then Ramby drove inside tackle and over the line for Purdue's touchdown. They failed to kick the goal. No more long gains were made during the rest of the quarter. Purdue threatened the Maroons several times later in the game, but timely interception of passes by Anderson saved the day both times. In the third quarter the Maroons came back with a rush that carried the Hoosier players off their feet. Marks, Anderson, and Rouse ran the ball from Chicago's 39 yard line to the Purdue 12 yard line, but here they lost their great chance, when a pass, Marks to Anderson, fell short of the required distance by 4 feet. Purdue threatened once again in the last quarter but was not able to push the ball across the line. The game ended 6 to 0 in Purdue's favor.

THE OHIO GAME

October 30. Chicago entered the Ohio game as the "under dog" but the first twenty-five minutes of play somewhat changed this relationship, for, in that period the Maroons actually outplayed the Buckeyes. Early in the second quarter, Ohio lost the ball on her own five yard line. This gave Chicago her opportunity to score. However, in three downs, Marks and Rouse were able to advance the ball only three yards and so the Maroons decided to try a kick. Rouse made a nice attempt at a field goal, but the ball sailed beneath the bar, and Chicago lost her last chance to make a score.

Ohio got her first touchdown when, after a series of end runs, off tackle dashes, center rushes, and forward passes by Karow, Grim, and Alber, a steady march down the field was completed and Grim carried the ball over for seven points.

In the third quarter Karow went through Chicago's line and unpursued ran twenty yards for the second touchdown. The last score was made after Clark intercepted an attempted pass from Marks to Apitz and Karow and Eby got the needed eighteen yards to cross the goal line. The game ended—Chicago 0, Ohio 18.

THE ILLINOIS GAME

November 6. Before a crowd of 50,000 fans, the Maroons stubbornly took a seven to nothing defeat in their home-coming game with Illinois. The first half, which started when the Orange and Blue kicked off to Chicago, was a punting duel between McDonough and Zuppke's star half-back, Peters. In this, neither team seemed to have the advantage. However, the "Downstaters" surpassed the Maroons in line plunges and end runs. Twice during the first half, Peters attempted to score with a field goal. One kick went wild and the other was nicely blocked by our linemen.

Early in the second half, Illinois got the ball on her own twenty yard line and by a series of line plunges combined with off tackle plays, gained 20 yards. Then Dougherity, who played a brilliant game throughout, managed to break through Chicago's line. Dodging the secondary defense, he made a dash for the goal line with three or four Maroons close behind him. McDonough, playing safety man, failed to stop him, and so the score became 7 to 0 in favor of Illinois. From this time on, neither team was able to make any points and the score remained unchanged until the end.

THE NORTHWESTERN GAME

November 13. In the thirty-seventh gridiron contest between Chicago and Northwestern, the Purple decisively defeated the Maroons 38-7. Not since 1918 have the results of any of these contests been favorable to Northwestern.

Scarcely realizing that the game had begun the Chicago defensive allowed Gustafson of Northwestern to dash 90 yards down the field for a touchdown on the initial kick-off. Two minutes later Baker kicked a field goal to make the score 10-0. From a series of first downs and two fine passes Northwestern added 7 points more to the already one-sided score. The first quarter ended as Baker made a 30 yard run for his team's third touchdown.

At the beginning of the third quarter Gustafson scored again. But from this time on the Maroons began to show some opposition. Chicago got the ball on a fumble on Northwestern's 35 yard line. Anderson passed to Marks who ran to the 20 yard line. Marks then threw straight over center to Anderson who scored. During the remainder of the period there was no scoring, but in the final period, aided by a penalty to Chicago, Lewis carried the ball across the Maroon's goal making the final count 38-7.

THE WISCONSIN GAME

November 20. The Maroon team closed the season with a 14-7 defeat at the hands of Wisconsin. The Badger eleven started with a rush. Rose carried the ball twenty-eight yards. Crofoot next added eighteen more. A series of forward passes and line bucks, centering around Rose, culminated in his scoring Wisconsin's first touchdown. Leitl then kicked the goal. Shortly afterward Crofoot got away for eighteen yards and then caught a pass from Rose for nineteen more yards, and after several line plays Rose passed over the goal to Crofoot for the second touchdown. Leitl again kicked goal.

After the disastrous first quarter the Maroons outplayed and outfought the Badgers, while Captain Marks and Anderson started tossing successive passes for a total of 170 yards. In the third period a series of short passes advanced the ball to the Badger goal. A beautiful triple pass sent Anderson over the line for the Maroon's only touchdown. McDonough kicked goal. Chicago had another chance to score when a forward pass, Marks to Apitz, netted fifty-three yards but the next three passes were blocked and the Maroons lost their last chance to tie the score.

THE BASKETBALL SEASON

The 1926 Basketball season was one of unusual interest. Many outstanding stars were developed on all of the Big Ten teams; a great number of remarkably close and spectacular games, many of which did not turn out at all as the critics had predicted, were played; and the race for the final championship was one of the closest in conference history.

The Chicago team, although at no time a dangerous contendor for the title, was in all its contests an opponent to be seriously considered. With such a pair of guards as Hoerger and McDonough, the former of whom was given a position on several All-Conference teams, because of his outstanding offensive and defensive playing, and with such a collection of players as Sackett, Zimmerman, Gist and Kaplan, all of whom, except Sackett, will play again next year, Chicago presented a team of more than average ability, and one which will probably be, in its coming season, a serious contendor for the Conference Championship.

The Maroons played their first pre-season game against the Oak Park Y. M. C. A. in Bartlett Gym. It was a close game, and if Norgren's men had not piled up a good lead in the first half, before Captain Sackett and Moerger were sent out on fouls, the "Y" champions would have won. The final score was Chicago 37; Y. M. C. A. 36. Michigan State was the next pre-season opponent for the Maroon squad. The game was an easy 35 to 24 victory for Chicago. Neither side played any remarkable Basketball. During the contest, Kaplan the Sophomore forward, hooked six baskets.

On December the 28th the Maroons had little trouble in gaining a 32 to 19 victory from Lawrence college. After the first half, when Chicago gained an 18 to 8 lead, the substitutes were put in to finish the game.

For the fifth successive year Butler College defeated the Maroons, this time by a 30 to 28 score. Chicago was ahead at the half, but the Indianapolis team won on a scoring rally in the last two minutes of play. In the last pre-season game, on January 3, Chicago was badly defeated by Iowa State, 18-28. The Ames Quintet easily stopped every type of play the Maroons tried.

THE BASKETBALL GAMES

January 8: Chicago vs. Iowa. The Maroon basketball team opened its conference season with a 19 to 13 defeat at the hands of Iowa. Both teams played a defensive game with few flashes of offensive play. This situation was the result of the impregnable guarding of Hoerger and McDonough for Chicago, and Hogan and McConnell for the Hawkeyes. Most of the throws were made from the middle of the floor. Although the Maroons got forty percent more shots than Iowa, they were unable to make as many baskets. Iowa led during most of the first part of the game, but Norgren's men tied the score 9 to 9 at the half. Early in the second half, Iowa got a four point lead and after cleverly holding the ball out of play for some time got two more decisive baskets. Sackett and McDonough went out on fouls during the second half.

January 12: Chicago vs. Northwestern. The Purple quintet gave the Midway five its first conference victory in Patton gym at Evanston, the score being Chicago 34, Northwestern 27. The Wildcats were unable to keep up their first half lead, and were easily defeated by a Maroon scoring rampage which they could not stop. Of the fourteen Chicago baskets, eleven were made from shots right under the rim. Although the score at the half was Northwestern 19, Chicago 15, and the play was about even, the Maroons in the first three minutes of play of the second half scored four baskets, and throughout the remainder of the game were never even threatened by the tiring Northwestern team.

January 17: Chicago vs. Wisconsin. In one of the most spectacular games ever played in Bartlett Gymnasium, Wisconsin after an extra period, beat the Maroons 33 to 30. At the end of seven minutes of play, Chicago was leading 12 to 5, and Wisconsin had been unable to make a single basket. However, the Badgers rallied toward the end of the half and the Maroons were ahead only three points at the gun, the score being 14 to 11. During the second half, the score was tied several times. In the last few minutes of play Wisconsin was in the lead by one basket. Kaplan tied the score, 27 to 27 just before the end, by a long shot from the middle of the floor. In the extra period, Wisconsin scored three times and Chicago was able to make only three free throws. This was one of the closest games of the season.

THE BASKETBALL GAMES

January 21: Chicago vs. Purdue. The Boilermakers defeated Chicago in one of the strangest contests in conference competition by a 38 to 16 score. It was a slow game, marked solely by the phenomenal shooting of Wheeler, with nine baskets and Wilson with five. Hoerger held Cummins, the remarkable Purdue center, from making any score and so these two took almost no part in the game. Chicago had been "doped" to win, but it was a game of upsets in every way.

January 29: Chicago vs. Indiana. The Hoosiers won a hard fought battle from Chicago at Bloomington by a 23 to 28 score. At the half, the Maroons, who had played a tight defensive game, were ahead 11 to 9. In the second half, Indiana went to the front, but throughout the remainder of the period, Chicago kept the play close. Each team made eight baskets, Sackett and Gist together making seven of those on Chicago's score.

February 5: Chicago vs. Indiana. This time the Maroons reversed the situation of the week before by upsetting all the predictions and defeating the Hoosiers 25 to 21. The Norgrenites made Indiana play a slow offense and made impossible the baffling speedy game in which lies the secret of her success. So the Hoosiers were unable to get their timing of plays working at Chicago's "slow movie" pace, and spent most of the evening trying to get the ball away from the deliberate Maroons. At the half, Indiana was ahead 15 to 11, but after a few minutes of play in the second half, Sackett, Gist and Hoerger easily going through the unorganized Hoosier defense, got a five point lead which Indiana was unable to make up. The game was by no means thrilling, but it was a beautiful piece of basketball technique.

KAPLAN

THE BASKETBALL GAMES

February 12: Chicago vs. Wisconsin. The Badgers, playing on their home floor, had little trouble in defeating the Midway five by a 31 to 20 score. Wisconsin had a 14 to 2 lead after fifteen minutes of play, a margin which the Maroons had cut down by seven points at the half. Sackett, who was put out early in the second half, was the high scorer on the Chicago team. He made three baskets while he was in the game. The usually strong Maroon defense was unable to fathom Wisconsin's hidden ball plays, and so let the Badger men gain the majority of the baskets.

February 19: Chicago vs. Northwestern. The Maroon beat the Purple for the second time this season in a listless game which ended in a 40 to 21 score. After five minutes of play, the score was 10 to 0 with Chicago on top, and at the half the contest was even further overbalanced—23 to 9. After that, the Maroons coasted and there was little real competition. Zimmerman got six of the fifteen baskets made by Coach Norgren's men.

February 22: Chicago vs. Michigan. Michigan had lost three games in a row and was in a mood to wreck anybody. Chicago turned out to be the victim for the infuriated Wolverines reaped a royal vengeance defeating the Maroons 51 to 25 with a regular landslide of baskets. Harrigan and Oosterbaan each hit the basket seven times and Martin who made five scores completed the trio of stars. These three made 19 of the 22 Michigan baskets. McDonough was the only Maroon to figure in the scoring. He sunk four baskets. Gist was out of the fighting because of an injury so that the Maroons had no man to jump at center against McCoy.

THE BASKETBALL GAMES

February 26: Chicago vs. Iowa. The Maroons traveled to Iowa City to fight a close battle with the Hawkeye quintet. Iowa won after a hard fought contest 25 to 23. Both teams made nine baskets and the final score was the result of two more free throws by Iowa than Chicago. Iowa led 17 to 13 at the half, but the Maroons fought hard and the contest was close right up to the end. Zimmerman and Hoerger scored most for Chicago with three baskets each.

March 5: Chicago vs. Michigan. The Wolverines came to the Midway to win a rather slow and tedious 34 to 15 victory from the Maroons. For the first twenty minutes of play, it was an interesting game with the Ann Arbor boys leading only 4 to 2. The Maroon guarding by Captain Sackett, Hoerger, and McDonough was really brilliant and presented an excellent defense. At the end of the half, however, Oosterbaan and Harrigan speeded up and the score was 15 to 5 at the gun. Until then Gist as center had been outjumping McCoy and giving Chicago the ball at the tip off. However, in the second half, Harrigan's snake-like dribbling and Oosterbaan's phenomenal one-hand follow up baskets were too much for the Norgrenites, and the game became a rout for Chicago. Zimmerman was the Maroon high score man. He made four baskets on about thirty shots from the floor.

March 12: Chicago vs. Purdue. The Maroons closed the conference basketball season by giving the Boilermakers a 37 to 30 victory at Lafayette. Captain Sackett played in the final game of his career. He made six baskets for the Maroons and was the outstanding individual star of the game. By this victory, Purdue gained a tie with Indiana for second place in the conference. The Maroons played a good game throughout, but the strong Boilermaker five was too fast for them.

THE BASEBALL GAMES

April 14. The Maroons opened their baseball season with a 12-5 defeat at the hands of Northwestern. Chicago opened up in the first inning by driving home four runs. After that, they counted only one more score. Northwestern was held to a lone run in the first inning but in the second, Gubbins was wild and allowed three more runs. Chicago again took the lead in the third inning when Webster was driven home. In the fourth inning, Northwestern assumed a commanding lead of 8-5. The Wildcats added another run in the fifth inning and three more in the eighth. The game was featured by errors, Northwestern being charged with four and Chicago two. Christman led the attack for the Purple, with two triples and a single.

April 20. Wallie Marks held Purdue to seven hits while his teammates were counting ten hits but the Boilermakers won 6-2. Purdue bunched their hits getting four of them in the first inning. One of these, a triple by Ware, drove home three runs. Chicago's first score came in the fourth, Webster singling and taking second on an error. He took third on an infield out, and walked home when Maxton balked. McConnell made the Maroons last run in the sixth after doubling to center. He was scored on a sacrifice fly by Marks. After the first inning, Marks pitched a heady game allowing only three hits.

May 1. A last inning rally by the Badgers gave Wisconsin a 8-5 victory over the University of Chicago. Gubbins pitched airtight baseball until the eighth and the Maroons maintained a 5-2 advantage. In that disastrous inning, the Badgers drove home two runs off Gubbins. Joie was relieved by Marks who let one more run in knotting the count. The badgers kept right on going in the ninth. Barnum's home run scored three men and gave Wisconsin the game. The Maroons lost several good opportunities to score due to the inability of the men at the tail end of the batting order to hit.

May 5. The University of Chicago trimmed Illinois, 7-6 in a hectic fourteen inning struggle. The Maroons took a good 5-0 lead in the first five innings which they maintained until the seventh. Then Wallie Marks lost control passing five men. Joie Gubbins was sent in for Marks and he was wild, too. In that inning, five Illinois men crossed the plate and tied the score. After that, Gubbins pitched a steady game and did not allow another run. In the fourteenth inning, Brignall singled and was sacrificed to second by Marks. Macklind was out at first but Kusinski muffed Gubbins' third strike and Joie took first and Brignall went to third. On the next play, with Hoerger up Kusinski muffed one of Stewart's pitches and Brignall came over with the winning run.

McConnell
Captain-Elect

May 12. Chicago wallopped Northwestern to the tune of 7-0, making up for the defeat they suffered at the hands of the Wildcats earlier in the season. Joie Gubbins pitched a wonderful game allowing only five scattered hits. The Maroons clinched the game in the first inning when Anderson, McConnell, and Brignall hit safely and brought in three runs. The Maroons added two runs in the third, one in the fifth and another in the eighth. Chuck Hoerger was the outstanding batter of the day with four hits, one a triple. Hoerger also starred in the field.

May 22. Purdue defeated the University of Chicago nine for the second time this season. Chicago outhit the victors but could not bunch her blows for any effective scoring. In the first frame, the score was two all. Purdue added another run in the second and one more in the fourth. Both teams scored in the seventh inning. The Maroons staged a last inning rally scoring two runs. Two Chicago runners who might have tied the score were left on bases when Gordon rolled out. The final score was 7-5. Anderson was the leading slugger of the game with two doubles and two singles.

May 26. Illinois made up for their defeat at the hands of the Maroons with a 13-0 victory. Johnny Ludlam pitched a fine game for the winners. Macklind and Zimmerman did not fare so well, being socked for a total of seventeen safe blows. The Illini went on a scoring rampage in the sixth inning, six men crossing the plate. O'Keefe hit a long home run. Chicago only made three hits, two of which were accounted for by Price. Zimmerman made the other.

Brignall

Webster

May 29. The Maroons played their best game of the season in defeating Ohio State 5-3. Up until the ninth frame, Ohio was leading by one point, but Sloteman, the Buckeye twirler, weakened and let two Maroons on bases. An error by Sommers and Gubbins' grounder to Karow forced in a Maroon and tied the score. In the extra inning, Anderson banged out a home run with Gordon on base. These two runs won the game. Both Sloteman and Gubbins pitched well, allowing six hits each.

Anderson

June 5. In a game marked by many brilliant plays, Wisconsin defeated the Maroons 8-2. In the first two innings, the Badgers were on a hitting rampage, driving home seven runs. After those two disastrous innings, Gubbins pitched airtight baseball, allowing only one more run, a homer by Larson. Tangen, the Wisconsin third baseman, had a batting average of 1.000. Chicago completed three double plays.

May 31. On May 31, the baseball team met Iowa in a game which was more nearly a combination track and aquatic meet than a baseball game. It was played in a downpour of rain and Iowa emerged victor by a score of 19-7. The Maroons made twelve errors most of which resulted in runs for Iowa. The pitching of Macklind and Zimmerman was not as bad as the score might indicate. They received absolutely no support. The one bright light in the game was the home run Hoerger hit. It was the longest home run of the season, a mighty blow over the center field fence.

IN MEMORY OF TOM ECK

In 1925 Tom Eck began his eleven years of service at the University of Chicago as trainer and assistant track coach. He became, during those years, almost as much of a Maroon institution as the "Old Man" himself. His wealth of anecdotes and experiences, gained from over fifty years of life in the athletic world, made him one of the most popular characters around old Bartlett, and through his genial and understanding treatment of his men, he became a real companion to them.

His greatest accomplishments as an athlete, coach, and as an amateur inventor were attained before he came to the Midway. He made and broke numberless world's records in walking and bicycle races, as well as in track and field events. The first six day bicycle races, which were contested in the old Madison Square Garden, were held under his management. He did not, however, confine his attention to athletics alone. He invented the first ball-bearing roller skates and helped plan and build the first board-banked bicycle track.

Tom Eck's greatest fame here at Chicago lies in his ability as trainer, coach, and all-around "good-fellow". His years of experience and his ability to keep in contact with every man, made him the Dean of American trainers. His death in June of 1926, at seventy years of age, was a great loss to the whole athletic world, and University of Chicago athletes who were trained by him must contribute much of their success to his conscientious, untiring interest and ability.

Captain Cusack and Coach Stagg

THE TRACK SEASON

The first event of importance in Chicago's outdoor track schedule was the Ohio relays held at Columbus on April 17. The day was most unfavorable for the athletes of the various schools, as there was a chill wind blowing and the sun was obscured by clouds. Twelve records were broken in this meet, while Cusack got third in the one mile race and Burg placed second to Anson of Ohio State in the high jump. Chicago's men were unable to place in any of the other events.

The next Saturday at the Pennsylvania relays, Western schools were able to take six first places back into camp. Burg was Chicago's only man to get a first place. He went 6 feet 3 inches in the high jump. In the Drake relays, which were being held, under atrocious weather conditions at the same time, the Maroons were not able to make any points.

The dual meet on May 1st with Indiana was the first, since the two schools have met on the track, in which Indiana has been the victor. As Stagg field was being torn up, and the team had not been able to practice out doors, the Maroon showing was very poor. The score was: Indiana 77, Chicago 57. Olwin won the hammer throw at 123 feet 9 inches. Fisher won the shot put with a heave of 39 feet 6 inches. Burg won the high jump and the pole vault.

Chicago met Purdue and was the victor by a score of 79 to 56. The Midway men won nine first places. McKinney was the highest individual point winner. Chicago's victories included; the 100 yard dash, by McKinney, in 10.1; the 120 yd. high hurdles, McKinney, 15.9; the 220 yd. low hurdles, Morrison, 25.5; the 440 yd. run, Cusack, 51.4; the two mile run, Dugan, 10:9; the discus, Olwin, 121 feet 2 inches; the high jump, Burg, 6 feet, 2 inches; the broad jump, McKinney, 20 feet, 9 inches.

On Saturday, May 14, the varsity track team journeyed to Columbus to battle with Wisconsin, Northwestern and Ohio. Chicago's team came out rather poorly. The sensation of the day was the high jumping contest between Burg of Chicago, Anson of Ohio, and McGinnis of Wisconsin, Burg finally winning, after a close battle, at 6 feet 6 inches. This was declared the greatest collegiate high jumping contest in years.

The following Saturday, Chicago met Minnesota at Minneapolis and was defeated 77 to 58. Minnesota earned nine firsts, while Chicago was able to take only six firsts. Burg continued his sensational high jumping by clearing the bar at six feet five inches.

On Saturday May the 29, the track team journeyed to Iowa City for the Conference track meet. 5000 people were present to see the leading athletes of the middle west contest for supremacy. It was an interesting meet but there was little doubt as to who was to be the victor. All the teams were in the scoring except Purdue. Burg tied with Anson of Ohio for first place in the high jump, and Cusack was 4th in the 880 yd. run. The final score for the first three schools was: Michigan 54.7, Illinois 46.45, and Iowa 41.95.

Burg

June 12th was the date of the National Intercollegiate Track and Field meet. It was held in Soldiers Field, Grant Park. Eight meet records, including a worlds record and an intercollegiate worlds record were broken. Alva Martin of Northwestern broke the world's record in the 880 when he ran it in 1:51.7. Haggerty of the University of Texas won the high jump and set a new collegiate record of 6 feet 7 inches. Burg was second. Southern California won the meet and Michigan was second. The crowd gathered in the stadium numbered about 10,000.

The University of Chicago opened its indoor track season on January 29 by a dual meet with Indiana University.

The Maroons were easy winners by a 52 to 37 score. Chicago took seven first places winning everything in the high jump and the half mile. Captain Burg won both the high jump at 6 feet 3 3-8 inches and the pole vault at 11 feet 6 inches. The relay team with Apitz, Williams, Hegovic and Burke won that event and Klein heaved the shot 40 feet 11 inches for first place. On February 5th the Maroons went to Lafayette and won their second Conference meet. The final score was 50½ to 35½. Chicago won 6 of the 10 first places. Burke won both the hurdles and the quarter-mile. Burg was first in the high jump and second in the pole vault, while Williams won the two mile and was a very close second in the mile pushing Little, the Purdue Captain, to a new gym record on 4:28.1.

Ohio State was the next opponent and gave the Maroons their first defeat of the season. The Buckeyes won 51 points to Chicago's 39. Each team took five first places, Burke in the 440, Cusack in the 880, Williams in the mile, Klein in the shotput, and Burg in the high jump scoring for Chicago. Ohio State took eight of the ten second places. Williams beat Kennedy, the Big Ten Indoor Championship Meet record holder in the mile. It was one of the greatest races ever run in Bartlett Gymnasium. Williams' time was 4:25.5.

Ohio State won the Fourth Annual Quadrangler Meet between Chicago, Wisconsin, Ohio State, and Northwestern, held on February the 19 at Evanston. Burg won Chicago's only first place, going six feet three and a quarter inches in the high jump and making a new meet record for this event. The scores were: Ohio State 57, Wisconsin 45, Northwestern 31, and Chicago 21. Ohio State sprang a surprise by taking all four relays. Wisconsin was second in three.

MICKLEBERRY

MORRISON

OLWIN

A total of eight thousand spectators saw athletes from every leading university in the west compete in the Tenth Annual Illinois Relay Carnival at Champaign on February 26. Captain McGinnis of Wisconsin won the individual championship. He made his best performance in the pole vault going 12 feet 10 inches. Captain Burg made another of his sensational high jump records. Outclassing his field, he set a new carnival mark at 6 feet 5½ inches.

On February 28 in a dual meet in which many good marks were made managed to nose out Chicago 43 to 39. The Maroons won the 440 with Burke, the 880 with Williams, the two mile with Degan, who broke the Bartlett record by a 9:41.6 performance, the shotput with Klein, and high jump with Burg. Minnesota took only four first places but got six seconds to the Maroons' three. The match was well contested throughout.

In the conference meet at Evanston on March 12, Wisconsin, starring Captain McGinnis, who took three first places, was the winner with 28 points. Ohio State got 18; Iowa 14½; Michigan 12; Illinois 11; and Chicago 9½. Northwestern, Minnesota, and Purdue trailed in order. Williams won the 880 for Chicago in 1:59.5, and Burg got second in the high jump after a thrilling contest with McGinnis, who made a new meet record at 6 feet, 5 inches. It was as exciting a track meet as one could hope to see.

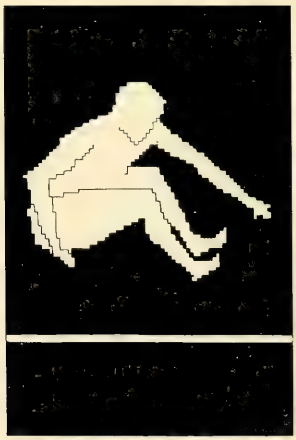

On March 25 and 26 the U. of C. indoor track season officially closed with the first Annual Invitation Track Meet in Bartlett Gymnasium. The Chicago A. A. won team honors with 54½ points; Chicago won second place with 22½; and the Illinois A. C. was third with 18. Five Bartlett records, some of which had stood for many years, were broken. Klein won the shotput at 42 feet, 1 inch; Burg won the high jump at 6 feet, 4 inches; and Burke won the half mile (first race) in 2:01. Let's hope that the successors of this first meet will be as successful.

THE GYMNASTIC SEASON

Though in many respects the athletic season as a whole has not been remarkably successful, and though there are those who say that the University of Chicago is in the midst of an athletic slump, still there are a few fields in which it is still unbeaten. Coach Hoffer and his gymnastic teams have been conference champions eight times, ranking second in the other three of the eleven seasons since the sport was organized.

This 1927 season has been unusually successful. Winning all of the six dual meets on the schedule by large scores, and taking all the first and three second places in the conference meet, the team came out with another easily won championship. Then, some of the team, not satisfied with the honors of the middle west, went East to the collegiate individual national championship at Princeton where Captain Davidson was the all around individual champion, giving outstanding performances in every event except the rope climb, a feature not included in the western meets, in which he had never had any experience.

The entire team was so far superior to almost every opponent that it is difficult to point out any few as outstanding stars. However, Captain Davidson, finishing his second year of Varsity competition, has made a record for which he deserves great credit. He was an able contender in all events, starring in the horizontal bar, the flying rings, the parallel bars and tumbling. He won more first places during the season than anyone else on the team. Flexner, on the flying rings, the horizontal and parallel bars, gave many excellent performances while Quinn, Nelson and McRoy helped materially in giving the team its superior record.

If Chicago is able to brings its other athletic activities to a standing like that of Coach Hoffer's smooth working, well balanced gymnasts, all opponents would have to improve greatly to merit competition with the University of Chicago.

THE SWIMMING AND WATER POLO SEASON

The swimming team, led by Captain Noyes for the second successive year and under the able instruction of Coach McGillivray, ended a comparatively successful season with a record of four victories and three defeats in dual meets and a fifth place in the conference meet at Illinois. The team set many fine marks and with a number of stars just beginning to develop, only a few losses through graduation, and several promising Freshmen becoming eligible for competition, the prospects for a successful 1928 season are most promising. The record of the Swimming Team with 9 conference championships is surpassed among the minor sports, only by the Tennis team. It is an enviable record, and although they did not win in 1927, the University of Chicago tankmen are still far in the lead of their opponents in total number of conference victories.

The water polo team, led by Captain Hall, completed its second season by tying with Northwestern for the conference championship. This is another sport in which Chicago seems to be able to hold her own undefeated, for both last year and this, the water polo teams have come out at the top.

Captain Noyes was perhaps the outstanding star of the tank representatives. His time, about fifty-six seconds in the one hundred yard swim, is an excellent mark and won many points for Maroon scores. Oker, a Sophomore, was a high point man starring both in the back stroke and the fifty and one hundred yard swims. The teams, as a whole, contained much excellent material and finished its season very well, considering the unusual ability of most of the opponents.

THE WRESTLING SEASON

A Wrestling team composed for the most part of inexperienced men and forced to meet teams of far more than average ability, finished its season by defeating the Northwestern delegation, in the place meet, and so winning ninth place in the conference. Coach Vorres' mat-men were handicapped at the beginning of the season by the loss of Captain Graham, the 135 pound representative of last year, and his team mate, Johnson, of the heavyweight class. Therefore, Captain Krogh, the winner of the 1926 Conference title for his class, and a few less experienced men were left to develop, with the outstanding sophomores, a successful team. When we take into consideration these handicaps, and the bad luck on time advantages which followed the team through the season, it is a wonder that it made as good a record as it did. In the Championship meet at Bartlett Gymnasium, Krogh lost his 175 pound class title to Ritz of Illinois, but appeared to outclass his rival throughout. Ritz got a 1:25 advantage early in the final bout and then managed to survive, although Krogh was so strong that he threw him out of the ring nearly a dozen times. Neither man was able to get the other to the mat and Ritz only saved the championship by diving through the ropes every time the Maroon clamped a hold on him.

Perhaps if they have a little better luck than it has had for the last few seasons, the Chicago wrestlers may be able to win the conference championship next year.

June 10-12	Conference meet at Chicago. Chicago won the team championship. Ken Hisert of Chicago won the individual title for the second successive year.

THE GOLF SEASON

Captain Hisert

The Chicago team, by playing splendid all-around golf, won the conference individual and team championships for 1926. Ken Hisert, far outclassing every opponent, was the outstanding star of the season which opened with the Iowa meet at the Olympia Fields course. The Maroons won 15 to 6. In the individual matches, Chicago got 9 to Iowa's 2, and in the best ball foursome the Midway golfers were the victors by a score of 6 to 4. On the next Monday the Purdue Team came to Chicago to be beaten 11 to 9. In the morning Captain Hisert's men won 3 out of four of the individual matches, and in the afternoon the Boilermakers were again defeated in the best ball foursome. On May 17 Ohio State golfers came to Olympia Fields and Chicago won another match 19 to 2. The Maroons won the singles by an 11 to 0 score, and in the foursome Chicago made 8 to their opponent's 2. On May 22 the team traveled to Champaign where it won an easy 17 to 5 victory. The individual matches ended Chicago 8, Illinois 1. The score of the best ball foursome was 9 to 4. In the last dual meet of the season Chicago won over the Wolverines at Ann Arbor. The Michigan golfers were able to get only 8 points to Chicago's 11.

The All-Conference Meet was held June 10, 11 and 12 in Chicago on the Knollwood Course of the Lake Bluff Suburban Club. The links had been soaked by a heavy rain and so, during the morning of the first day, the Chicago men were not up to their usual form. However, as the meet progressed, the Maroons forged ahead and held an easy lead for the remaining two and a half days. The final team scores were as follows: Chicago 659; Illinois 662; Northwestern 681; Michigan 683; Wisconsin 725, and Ohio State 742. Captain Hisert, with 312, was the best single scorer. Kundstadter of Illinois was second (322), and Bartlett of Chicago was third (326). Hisert, by winning the individual championship for the second successive year, gave Chicago the fifth such title in the last seven seasons. Certainly no team ever had a more satisfactory close to a successful season.

THE TENNIS SEASON

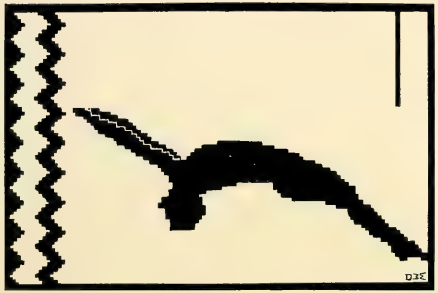

Although it contained but two veterans of the 1925 season, the 1926 tennis squad made a most satisfactory showing in all its meets. Captain Schaefer's men played their first games on the Chicago courts with Iowa as the opponent. The Maroons lost two of the four singles and both of the doubles. On May 8 the Midway net squad journeyed to Champaign to be defeated 4-2. The Illini won three of the four singles. The honors were divided in the doubles.

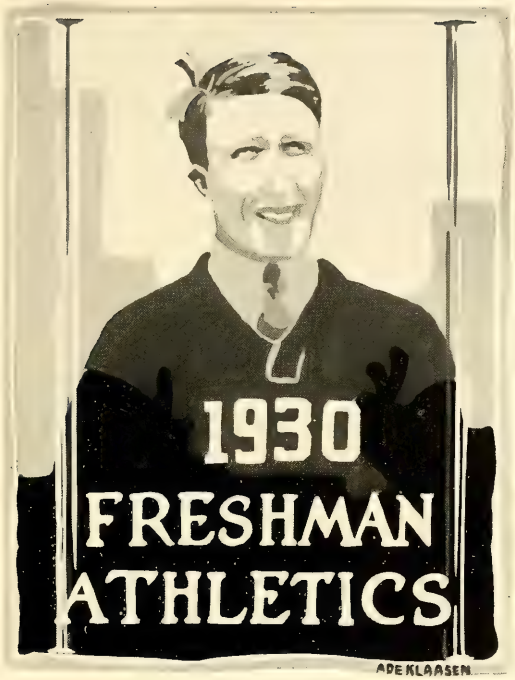

On the following Tuesday the Northwestern tennis squad came to the Midway and was defeated by a five to four score. Chicago won three of the six singles and in the doubles Hudlin and Hall beat Collins and Howard 6-2, 6-1, while Schaefer and Shapinsky were defeated by Sherill and Phillips, 5-7, 6-3, 6-1. The match with Ohio State was held at Columbus. The teams split even in doubles, but Chicago lost four of the five singles; so the final score was a 5 to 2 Buckeye victory. On May the 17th the Wolverines came to Chicago to beat the Maroons 4 to 3. Chicago won three of the five singles, Schaefer losing one of the other two to Krickbaum by a 1-6, 6-4, 7-5 score. Michigan won both of the doubles.

Wisconsin was the next opponent on the Maroon schedule. The Badgers were ahead 4 to 1, when because of the rain the meet was stopped. However in both doubles, Chicago's pairs had each won the first sets.

On May 27, 28, and 29, the Conference tennis tournament was held on the University of Chicago courts. The Illini won both the Singles and Doubles titles. Frank O'Connell got the individual championship for which Herman Shapinsky of Chicago was runner-up. The match between O'Connell and Shapinsky was one of the features of the tournament. The score was 6-3, 7-5, 4-6, 6-4. For the doubles title, in the finals, Boldenwick and Durand of Wisconsin were defeated by O'Connell and Shoaff of Illinois, 6-4, 8-6, 7-5.

In the final meet of the Chicago season, the team went to Evanston to try to defeat Northwestern. The score was Chicago 3, N. U. 1, when the matches had to be called off on account of rain. In the two unfinished sets the Purple had a slight advantage over the Maroons.

SPRING GOLF 1926

GARARD

Since there is no University golf course, the Intramural Tournament was run off on the Jackson Park 18-hole course. The entrants were paired and given three weeks in which to get together and play. The scores, attested by the losers, were turned into the Intramural office at the end of this period, and the winning team was ascertained by the score cards. The scheme worked out very well. Keenan and Stein, unattached, with a low score of 155 were declared the University Champions and were given the cup provided for the winner.

Garard of Chi Psi and Stein tied for individual low scores with 77. In the play-off Garard won by one stroke and became the Intramural Golf Champion. The interest was widespread and the competition keen. As the scores were turned in, the excitement grew as low score teams were replaced by lower score teams. Many of the teams were close to the winners which is quite remarkable considering the adverse playing conditions.

SPRING TENNIS 1926

The annual doubles and singles tennis tournament was the most successful minor sport of the Spring Quarter. There were over three hundred entries, and the play was featured by many thrilling matches.

In the team play Beta Theta Pi won first place through the sterling playing of Bob Place and Bob Fisher. They proved to be unbeatable with their excellent team work and fast returns. Zeta Beta Tau was the runner-up, and Sigma Nu was third, both having strong teams.

In the singles play, from a field of over two hundred and fifty, Bob Place, Beta Theta Pi, downed all comers to take an easy first place. Hoppe was second, with Whitney of Psi U third. Hoppe showed some excellent shots but was not consistent enough to defeat Place.

The courts were in good shape in spite of a good deal of rain, and enthusiasm never failed.

PLAYGROUND BALL

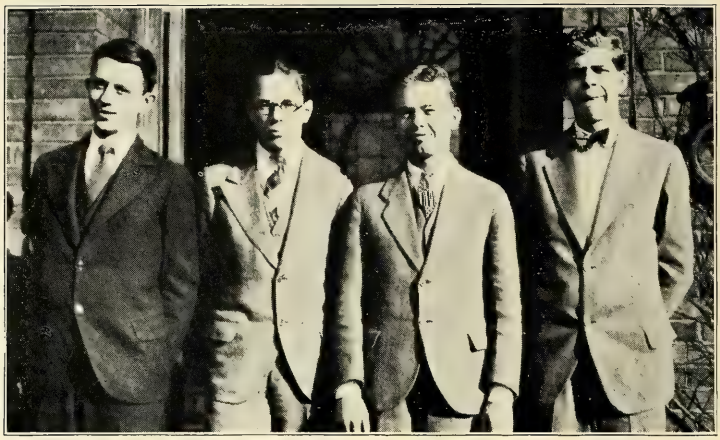

SIGMA NU

Playground ball is the most popular outdoor sport on the Intramural Division spring program. All matches were played on the diamonds at 59th and Cottage, where the daily contests were witnessed by many enthusiasts.

Over six hundred men competed and there were many strong teams in the various leagues. The six league winners battled in an elimination tournament for the University Championship. The final game was played on Stagg Field where a large crowd witnessed the thrilling match between Sigma Nu and Kappa Nu. Sigma Nu won. This game was a big feature of the Spring Carnival, and great credit is due to the Sigma Nu pitcher, Stevens, who pitched a sterling game and held the opponents from getting on the bases.

Alpha Delts with Covert on the mound gave the winners some good competition and were a close third.

The whole tournament was a big success and a great many more men competed this year than ever before. In spite of adverse weather conditions the whole tournament went off smoothly in time to have the finals at the Spring Carnival.

DELTA SIGMA PHI—RELAY WINNERS

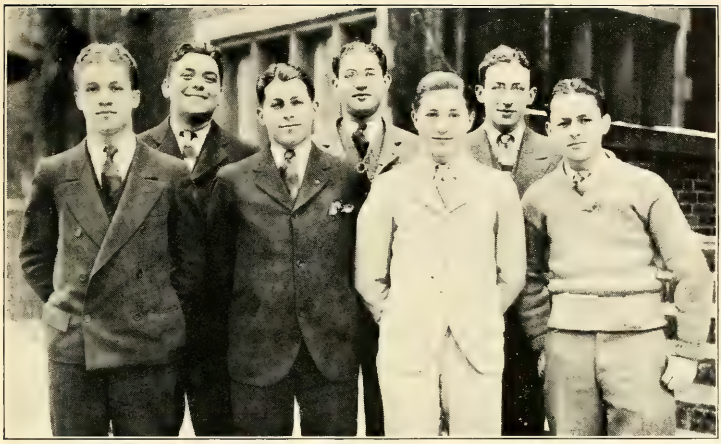

DILLENBACK FARIS WECKLER HEDEEN

SPRING CARNIVAL 1926

The Second Annual Intramural Outdoor Carnival was held on May 4th and 5th on Stagg Field. Despite the fact that the grounds were torn up by the work on the new stadium, the Carnival, under the management of Bill Weddell and his efficient staff, was very successful from every standpoint. More than three hundred students turned out to vie for the championship, which was finally won by the old athletic rivals, Phi Kappa Psi and Alpha Delta Phi, with 28 points each.

The meet was marked with fierce competition in each event and the close three-cornered fight for the championship between the Alpha Delts, Phi Psis and the Delta Sigs kept the spectators on edge every minute. The five leading teams were as follows: Phi Kappa Psi, 28; Alpha Delta Phi 28; Delta Sigma Phi 24; Delta Upsilon 22½; Sigma Alpha Epsilon 13.

Delta Sigma Phi, 1925 champions, put a powerful relay team in the race which won after a close struggle with Alpha Delta Phi and Phi Kappa Psi. Faris of Delta Sigma Phi and Chuck Anderson of Alpha Delta Phi tied for high honors with ten points apiece. Anderson won the dashes and Faris won in the 880 and 1 mile runs. Other sterling performers were; Peale of Phi Kappa Psi in the hurdles and 220; Quin of Alpha Delta Phi in the broad jump. McEwan and Francis of the Alpha Delt team and Laverty and Farwell of the Phi Psis were other teams who helped their teams tie for the championship. Victor Johnson of Delta Sigma Phi won the 440 yard dash in 55.5 for a new carnival record on the track and Kaufman of the Macs broke the high jump record with a leap of 5 feet 7 inches.

KAPPA NU—CHAMPIONSHIP TEAM

BARTON STONE KLAFF

KATNER BALCH GETTLEMAN HEIMBACH

HORSESHOE-PITCHING TOURNAMENT

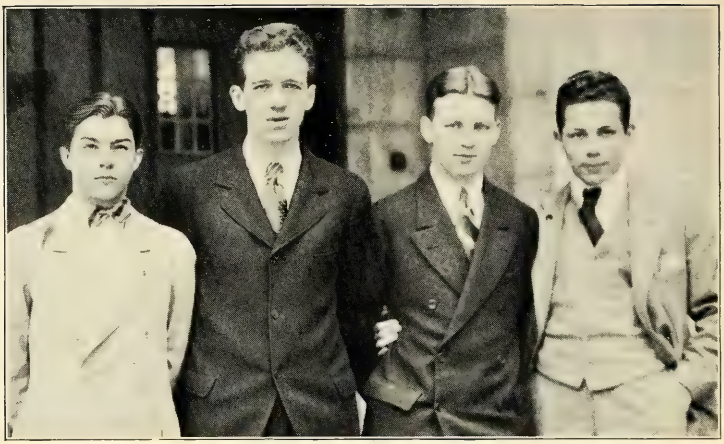

The Horseshoe Tournament of 1926 was the largest ever conducted by the Intramural Division. A greater number of teams participated and great interest was displayed.

The Tournament opened on October 13 and closed December 3rd. Fifteen courts were used, five matches being played at a time. Fifteen games were played a day at the times of 3:00, 3:30 and 4:00 p. m. One hundred four games were played, two hundred thirty-four men participated, two hundred three of which were fraternity men, the remaining thirty-one being club men. There were five fraternity leagues and one club league consisting of thirty fraternity teams and five club teams.

The winners in the leagues were as follows:

Alpha League	Acacia
Beta League	Tau Delta Phi
Gamma League	Phi Gamma Delta
Delta League	Pi Lambda Phi
Epsilon League	Delta Sigma Phi
Club League	Midway Ath. Club

The championship was won by Kappa Nu. Phi Kappa Sigma was second, and Tau Delta Phi, third. Lambda Chi Alpha finished fourth.

PHI KAPPA PSI—WINNING TEAM

YAEGER FARWELL PEALE TROWBRIDGE

CROSS COUNTRY RUN

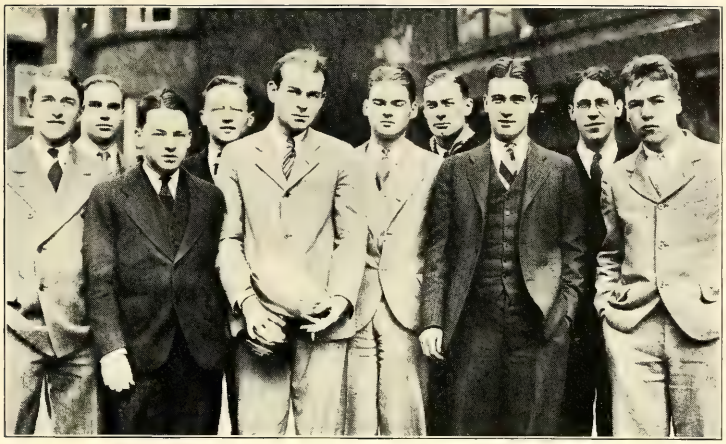

Despite the cold weather and a snow covered course, the race was started promptly at 3:45 o'clock. Due to the slippery footing and a strong wind the time 14:45 was considerably slower than that of last year.

Pinner of Sigma Alpha Epsilon won the race by beating J. Holt, Alpha Delta Phi, in the last five yards. Those finishing in third to tenth place were: Ziegler, Unatt.; Farwell, Phi Psi; Steere, Lambda Chi; Pinckovitch, Phi Beta Delta; Gidwitz, Tau Delta Phi; G. Faris, Delta Sigma Phi; Trowbridge, Phi Psi; Hickman, Romans.

The team prize was won by Phi Kappa Psi—Farwell, Trowbridge, and Yaeger. Delta Sigma Phi, with Faris, Belt, and Springer took second place, while Sigma Chi with Stromer finished third. The team points were:

		Points
1.	Phi Kappa Psi	39
2.	Delta Sigma Phi	44
3.	Sigma Chi	36
4.	Tau Delta Phi	64
5.	Delta Upsilon	70
6.	Chi Psi	116
7.	Phi Kappa Sigma	139
8.	Kappa Sigma	155
9.	Sigma Nu	164

One hundred ninety-two men entered the Undergraduate race, and eleven in the Graduate event. Seventy-five competed and sixty-five finished within the allotted time of twenty-four minutes. Of the total entries forty were non-fraternity men—five clubs being represented. Seventeen fraternities were represented.

PSI UPSILON—UNIVERSITY CHAMPIONS

Sheldon Boynton Libby Watrous Lott Pratt
Pollard Gordon Elwood Crane

TOUCHBALL

Touchball has never suffered from any lack of interest and this year more than ever before it proved to be the most popular of all the Intramural Sports. The fraternity schedule was drawn up before the opening of school and every fraternity entered a team. The first games were played a few days after the start of school and from then on there was a real battle for the title. There were comparatively few forfeits and on several occasions good crowds of spectators turned out to witness the games. The large number of games is a fair indication of the closeness of the contests. Especially is this true of the semi-finals where the first and second place league winners met to decide the finalists. Time and again overtime periods were played and often darkness came before the tie could be broken.

Psi Upsilon, after beating the best teams in the university, won the silver football awarded to the university champions. Second place went to Phi Sigma Delta, and third and fourth places to Delta Upsilon and the Macs respectively.

For the first time a successful non-fraternity league was run off. A great deal of interest was shown by these men who were organized into clubs. It is interesting to notice that the fourth place winner, the Macs, was a club team and that in the semi-finals, they were three times tied with the teams that finished above them.

A graduate league was also successful for the first time. After several interesting games the team from the Chicago Theological Seminary won the championship. It is hoped that next year even more interest will be shown in the graduate athletics and that this phase of intramurals may be broadened to include every graduate student in the University.

BURTONS—CARNIVAL CHAMPIONS

CRANDALL CONRAD VEEDER STEPHENSON
ALLAN ETTELSON

THE SWIMMING CARNIVAL

The Third Annual I-M Swimming Carnival was more successful this year than ever before. There were more entries and more of those who entered participated.

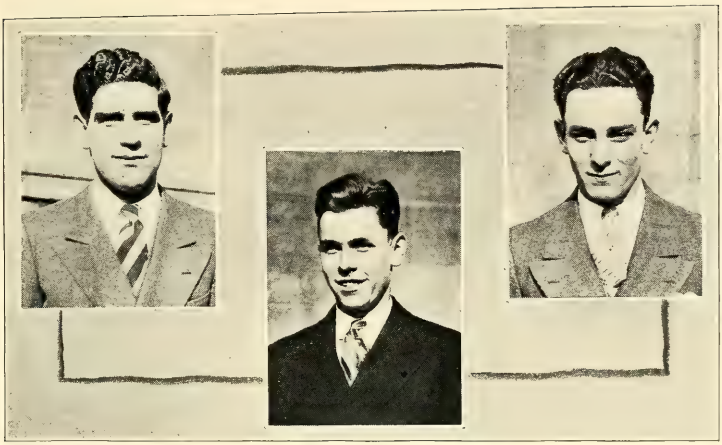

One of the new features introduced in this meet was an exhibition High School Invitation relay race. Four of the best teams in the city, Hyde Park, Tilden, Lindblom, and Englewood were represented by six man relay teams, each man swimming two laps. A silver loving cup was awarded the winner of the race by Mr. A. A. Stagg. Tilden came up from behind to win this event in 2:10 5-10. Englewood was second, Hyde Park third, and Lindblom last.

For the first time in I-M history a non-fraternity organization, the Burton Club, won this meet. This organization included many of the best non-Greek swimmers in the University and they placed a man in nearly every race. Chi Psi was second and Phi Kappa Psi was third.

In spite of the fast time set in last year's carnival, several of those marks were lowered. Dick Hough of Chi Psi, the outstanding swimmer of the meet and high point man, clipped four seconds off last year's time in the 220 free style, and R. Ettleson, outstanding performer for the Burtons, knocked 3 2-5 seconds from last year's mark in the 100 yard free style.

The organizations placed in the following order:

	Points
Burtons	33
Chi Psi	15
Phi Kappa Psi	13
Delta Sigma Phi	10
Alpha Delta Phi	9

ROTHCHILD ENGBERG DEBS

FALL GOLF, 1926

The Autumn Quarter Intramural Golf Tournament was played on the Jackson Park Links. There were several fine days to play on, so that a number of good scores were turned in. The Pi Lambda Phi team, Debs and Rothchild, took team honors with 155, and Jerome Debs won the Upper Classmen event with a card of 75. Several other teams gave them some close competition. In the freshman class Paul Engberg of Beta Theta Pi walked away with the honors getting around in 79. There was very little competition in this class. There were a large number of entries and nineteen teams and ten individuals turned in cards.

Tau Sigma Omicron—Champions

HANDBALL

This year a very successful handball tournament was staged. Interest was keen and the enthusiasm at the final games was worthy of note.

The doubles championship was won by Tau Sigma Omicron who defeated the Midway Athletic Club in the finals. Third place was won by Hendreickson and Ehrlich, an unattached team.

The singles championship was won by Witkowsky of Tau Sigma Omicron; Stevens of Sigma Alpha Epsilon was second, and Cooperman, an unattached man, was third.

The Kents—University Champions

BOWLING

The Bowling Tournament this year was featured by many close matches and some very high scores. During the matches there were many games well over eight hundred and many individuals bowled consistently over one hundred seventy-five and several over two hundred. Because of the rather poor condition of the alleys none of the teams made a good showing in the Western Conference Bowling Association Tournament. An unusually large number of really strong teams competed.

The strong Kent team defeated all opposition winning the University Championship after some close scrapes. A great many of the semi-final and final matches were decided by a matter of not more than ten pins; it is easy to see that the competition was keen.

The entry list was larger than usual this year with twenty-nine teams competing, although after a couple of matches some of the teams became discouraged and dropped out giving forfeits to their opponents in the future.

Beautiful awards were given to the Kents and to the A. T. O. who won second place.

Delta Upsilon—"A" Division Champions

BASKETBALL

The 3rd Intramural Basketball tournament closed Friday, March 4th, with a great game between Delta Upsilon and Sigma Nu. These teams were first and second from the same league and had met before on two occasions. The first, a regular league game, was won by Sigma Nu; the second, to decide a tie for the league championship, went to Delta Upsilon. The third and closest contest between these two teams came on the night of the Third Annual I-M Indoor Carnival at which time Delta Upsilon became University Champions by the score of 16-15.

Many good teams were developed in the course of the tournament, and a great many of the games were close and hotly contested. Many stars were uncovered who undoubtedly will make good varsity material. The season was unusually successful in that there were few forfeits and the percentage of game placed was better than ever before.

Sixty-one teams, representing nearly all of the men's organizations on the campus played in the "A" and "B" leagues and in the graduate league.

In the "A" division the final results were:

Delta Upsilon	First
Sigma Nu	Second
Sigma Chi	Third
Lambda Chi Alpha	Fourth

In the "B" division the results were as follows:

Sigma Nu	First
Phi Delta Theta	Second
Psi Upsilon	Third
Burton Club	Fourth

FOUL SHOOTING

Over 120 men took part in this year's foul shooting tournament. About 20 organizations competed. Each team was allowed to enter as many men as it wished, but only the five highest individual scores counted toward the organization score. Leonard Gray, Delta Sigma Phi, won the individual high point prize by shooting 42 baskets out of 50 shots. Harold Koerber, Sigma Nu, and Harold Priess, Phi Sigma Delta, tied for second place, each shooting 41 baskets.

The organization winners were:

Sigma Nu—177	First
Macs—153	Second
Phi Kappa Sigma—150	Third

Delta Upsilon—Winning Relay Team

THE INDOOR ATHLETIC CARNIVAL

The Intramural Department put more effort into making the Third Annual Athletic Carnival a success than it has every put into any other single feature of its program. An elaborate time schedule was drawn up with great precision so that the maximum of entertainment was crowded into the three hours from seven to ten. The finals in the Intramural basketball, wrestling, and boxing were held in addition to the track events. The varsity track, fencing, and gymnastic teams gave exhibitions of their skill, and in addition special events similar to vaudeville acts were presented. Interspersed with these numbers were musical features by fraternities, the University of Chicago Band, and a six piece jazz orchestra. A special Maroon was distributed and also an attractive forty-four page booklet and program. The Carnival was well attended by a crowd that filled the gym to its capacity and cheered the performers who well deserved the praise given them.

The Carnival events were closely contested. Delta Upsilon and Sigma Chi tied for first. They were declared co-champions and each provided with a gold statuette of a runner which was the award for first place. The Carnival was highly successful this year and it is hoped that in the future it may become the biggest all-university event of the school year.

The winners were:

50 yard Dash—Won by Norman Root, Phi Pi Phi, 5 9-10 seconds.
50 yard Low Hurdles—Won by Root, Phi Pi Phi, 6 8-10 seconds.
300 yard Run—Won by Morganstren, Alpha Delta Phi, 39 3-10.
600 yard Run—Won by Mahan, Sigma Chi, 1 minute, 31 seconds.
1 mile Run—Won by Swanson, Delta Sigma Phi, 5 minutes, 15 4-5 seconds.
High Jump—Tie by Haas, Delta Upsilon and Basset, Sigma Chi, 5 feet, 5 inches.
Shot Put—Won by Hass, Delta Upsilon, 39 feet, 10 inches.
I-M Relay—Won by Delta Upsilon, 2:16 5-10.

THE WOMEN'S ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

During the year 1926-27 the Women's Athletic Association has increased its efforts to provide social activity for the University women. With that end in view it has engaged in a wide field of sports. Baseball, hockey, basketball, swimming, captain-ball, volleyball, horseback riding, hiking, fencing, tennis, and golf are among the activities in which it has endeavored to interest the women students of the University.

Work and play have been combined in an attempt to strengthen the organization and appeal to the various interests of individuals. Field Day and Spring Banquet, initiation dinners, Torch, Wisconsin Luncheon, and sport dinners were all carried on in the friendly spirit of play as were also the tasks of selling refreshments at the Interscholastic Basketball Tournament and balloons at the football games.

For the first time in the history of W. A. A. a representative was sent from the organization to a hockey camp of college women held in the Pockono Mountains in September. And two delegates were sent to the National Conference of Athletic Associations at Cornell in April.

During the winter quarter a new type of open meeting was planned by the Advisory Board, a combined business meeting and open house tea, with an occasional prominent speaker. The official opening of the new Lodge in Palos Park with a house warming, however, is the outstanding achievement of the year. The long-worked-for dream has come true!

HOCKEY

The hockey season of 1926 was a good season, if one can forget the mud. And that should be easily forgotten because it was outweighed by the merit of the class teams and the keen competition in the games. The rainy weather did not dampen the enthusiasm of the players in the least. It only provided a little variety from the usual game in the form of sliding and falling meets. There was, however, no "mud slinging".

The Seniors finally emerged as victors after a period of uncertainty when the championship might have gone to the Frosh, Sophomore, or Senior teams. Although they lacked in numbers, experience and superior team work gave the Seniors the needed punch to attain the championship.

The Honor team, made up of four Freshmen, three Sophomores, two Juniors, and two Seniors, met the Alumni team on November 31. The undergrads played a good game and downed the grads 3-2. The end of a successful Hockey season! (And the mud is forgotten.)

MINOR SPORTS

One hundred and fifty girls were enrolled in the Captain Ball classes last Fall despite the fact that it is considered a minor sport. The season was a very successful one, ending with a peppy dinner and tournament.

Volleyball, another so called "minor sport", was extremely popular last spring. Thirty-six teams took part in the Field Day tournament on Dudley field, won by the "Volley Ball Kids".

A new sport for women—fencing—rose to successful heights this year. Thirty-five girls participated in the Autumn quarter and an advanced class in charge of Dr. Alvar Hermanson was held during Winter quarter.

SWIMMING

This has been an exceptionally successful year for swimming. The inter-class swimming competition was very keen, especially between the Freshman and the Sophomores. However the Sophomores managed to retain the lead which they established in the first meet through the last two meets. In individual high point scores Nan Griswald, Sophomore, headed the list with thirty-six points. Ethel Brignall, her nearest competitor and also a Sophomore, had thirty three points and Carolyn Teetzel thirty two. Helen Byanskas, a junior, and Sinah Kitzing, a Freshmen, were the next in the competition for honors with twenty four and twenty three points respectively.

The excitement was heightened in the last meet when the Sophomores broke two records. The forty yard back stroke record of 34.6 seconds is now held by Nan Griswald who lowered the old record of 36.5. The Sophomores broke the old record of 52 seconds for the eighty yard relay by establishing a new record of 50.4 seconds. The diving also reached a new height, this year, in the work of Ethel Brignall and Helen Byanskas.

BASKETBALL

The Senior basketball team came through the season undefeated. All the games, however, were closely played. The Sophomores and Freshmen developed exceptionally good teams this year, and the Seniors had to make the fullest use of their four years experience to maintain their undefeated position. The Junior team got off with a slow start, but braced up and played their last two games with a good deal of pep, and their last game with the Sophomore team ended with a tie score. The two games between the Sophomores and the Freshmen were closely matched, the Freshmen leading in the early quarters of the games, with the Sophomores recovering and coming out ahead. The final ranking of the teams was: Seniors first; Sophomores seond; Freshmen third, and Juniors fourth.

Each class was well represented on the honor team squad, which was made up of four Seniors, one Junior, two Sophomores, and two Freshmen. After the annual basketball dinner, which was held in the cafeteria of Ida Noyes Hall, the Honor Team played the Alumnae team.

FIELD DAY

Dressed as "kids", disguised as "Leaping Lenas", imitating "blue-streaks", and personifying pirates, the women of the University participated in the parade of the Annual Field Day of the Physical Education department on June eighth. Of the thirty-six teams in costume, the "Leaping Lena" aggregation, parading in a human powered machine, was awarded first prize for the most clever get-up.

Following the parade the Volleyball tournament was played, the V. B. K.'s winning first place. At the same time the field and track meet was held at the other end of Dudley field. The track championship was won by the Junior women with a total of 127 points. The Freshmen came second and the Sophomores third. Margaret Harrison, Freshman, broke the University high jump record with a 4′ 5″ jump.

The baseball game between the honor team and the alumnae and a box supper concluded the events of the big day at Dudley field.

UNORGANIZED SPORTS

Hiking has been an exceptionally popular sport this year. There have been many varieties and kinds of hikes led by representatives of W. A. A. and all of them have been well patronized. There have been short Saturday morning hikes on the North Side, still shorter afternoon hikes on the South Side, all day hikes to the Flossmoor Country Club, and best of all, week-end hikes and camping trips at the new W.A.A. Lodge at Palos Park. These last have been a blessing to those undergraduates who still appreciate an occasional night in the woods.

But hiking is only one unorganized sport. Horseback riding has a host of adherents among the co-eds on the campus. Tennis and golf, too, are popular forms of recreation and the annual tournaments in the spring bring forth some "classy" material. All these sports reward the participant with W. A. A. points in addition to the good times and exercise inherently involved.

THE W. A. A. LODGE

After years of hoping and planning, not to mention the months of hard work, the Women's Athletic Association has achieved its Lodge. A house has been rented on a private estate near the forest preserve, in Palos Park, attractively set among the woods on a private drive just off the main highway. There are W. A. A.'s own garden, the hills, a pond, and the house itself—just the right size for ten people without being too large to bore the housekeepers with work. Three rooms downstairs provide the necessary kitchen, dining room, and living room, while upstairs there is a dormitory, a dressing room, and a private bedroom for the hostess.

Now that everything is ready, W. A. A. is inviting University women to the housewarming and to week end parties thereafter. The aim of the Lodge is to provide an enjoyable place for week-end relaxation from the life of the University, providing as it does toboganning, skating, and skiing in winter; hiking, games, and riding in summer; and at all times the fun of being together with friends in a comfortable home in the woods.

CINDERELLA

SATURDAY MORNINGS WERE SPENT IN THE FIELD MUSEUM

There was once a girl by the name of Cinderella who lived in Foster Hall and had never eaten at the Shanty or Gargoyle's. That is, she was a junior in the School of Education. Life, as she saw it, consisted of breakfast, three classes, lunch, one half hour's recreation, four and one-half hour's study, a luke warm bath, three more hours of study, and eight hours of un-Freudian sleep—or visa-versa. Saturday mornings were spent in combing the Field Museum for things that might give her a wider understanding of the world in general, while Sunday afternoons were invariably devoted to the writing of Sonnets on such out-of-the-way, never-before-discovered places as Hull Gate, Harper Library, the clock in Cobb, and Mandel Cloister.

NO ONE COULD ANSWER THE PHONE LIKE SHE COULD

Needless to say, she was very popular among the dorm girls. No one could answer the phone like she could when the folks called up from the North Side. The flexibility of her voice bordered on ventriloquism, and the way she responded into the diaphragm, "Yes Mother, this is Marjorie (or Gertrude, or Ruth, or Lucille, or Jeanette, or Louise, as the case might have been)" was nothing short of genius. Besides, the notes that she would write out after each call—"Your Mother phoned and was very pleased to find you in studying. She was worried however that you do not get outside more."—were always written legibly and coherently, making very easy reading for the girls when they came in late, their eyes half closed with weariness. They had to admit in this respect, that she was, if not the backbone, at least the twelve ribs of the dormitory.

Her life was perfectly a contented affair, balanced nicely so far as she was concerned except in one particular—MEN. It seems that while she was still in Kindergarten a little boy had once blown a spit ball into her ear. From that day she had shunned the opposite sex—and worn her hair in puffs around her ears, as protection against spit-balls.

There came a day, however, when the Washington Prom was announced in the Daily Maroon. "Ah," thought Cinderella as she watched her dormitory sisters making preparation for that glorious affair, "If I could only go to the Washington Prom!" The other girls only laughed up their sleeves when they heard her wish. "Fi," they said, "and what would you do if you were to go to a Washington Prom—you who are only good for answering the telephone. Go back to your pad and pencil!" And they would laugh raucously at the prospect of Cinderella at a Washington Promenade.

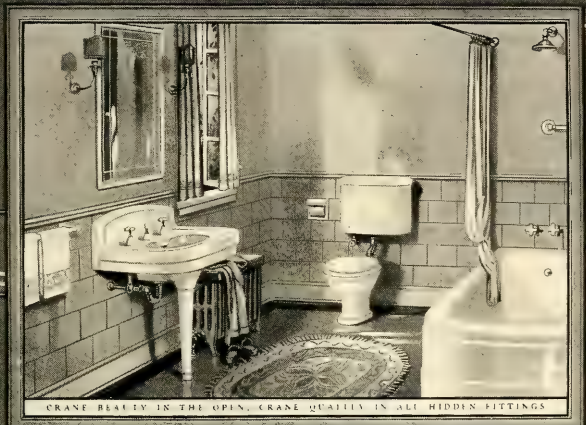

The poor girl bore her misery bravely. "After all," she thought to herself, "they are right. I am only good for answering the telephone." Instead of going into jealous fits of anger and sulking she did everything she possibly could to help the other girls in getting ready.

Finally the night of the Prom arrived. As couple after couple left the dormitory Cinderella cried silently to herself—"O God," she thought, "Why didn't you make me like the other campus women, even if I am better then they at the phone."

As if in answer to her prayer she felt a tap on her shoulder and looked around to find the good-looking girl from Pittsburg confronting her. "Honey," said the G.-L. G. F. P., "Will you do me a favor and go to the Prom in my place?" Cinderella's whole being lit up and then became solemn again. She knew she was being kidded. "You see," explained her fairy Godmother, "My sister in Pittsburg got me a date with a Philadelphia boy who went Psi U at Illinois. If you want to take a chance its yours for the asking. I'm never certain about those fellows. Besides he won't know the difference. He doesn't know me any better than he does you. I'll let you take my evening gown. How about it?"

Like an inspired Joan of Arc, Cinderella accepted the offer. Swiftly she ran to her room and dressed. Down came the puffs, and straight back went her hair in boyish fashion. Now and then the G.-L. G. F. P. offered suggestions, and when they were all through she could only stand back amazed.

"My dear," she exclaimed, "Where have you been keeping yourself. You're beautiful!" Cinderella flushed at the compliment, but before she could say thank you, the maid came in to announce, "The gentleman is waiting downstairs."

It was 1:30 a.m. The Prom supper was just completed. Cinderella and her escort were lolling softly and sentimentally in the luxury of a deep centered sofa.

"It has been a wonderful evening," said Cinderella.

"You wonderful creature!" breathed her escort. "Who are you? I have the picture of the girl I was supposed to take in my pocket. It cannot possibly be you. You are too beautiful; your eyes are too full of tenderness,—you—"

Cinderella jumped from the sofa. Before he could stop her she ran through the entrance of the ballroom, out through the lobby, and finally into a taxicab that had been parked conveniently by. He followed after her, but too slowly. Only the tail-light of her cab was visible through the darkness of the night. And he did not even know her name. All he had to identify her was the non-committing evening wrap that she had left behind.

The next day the matron of Foster Hall, surrounded by a circle of girls was emphatically denying to a young man who was obviously a Psi U from Illinois that any of the girls owned a certain evening wrap which he held in his hands.

"I'm certain, Sir, that it belongs to none of them," she told him. "Does it girls?" she asked turning to the group around her. "No Ma'am, we're sorry but it doesn't," they all replied—that is, all but one. The lone exception was the G.-L. G. F. P. "Why don't you look in the pocket?" Maybe it'll contain some sort of identification," she suggested.

Feverishly the young man put his hand in the pocket. His fingers closed around something, and he drew out—a little blue telephone pad.

"Cinderella," exclaimed all the girls simultaneously.

"Yes," smiled the G.-L. G. F. P., "She's the one you are after."

"Cinderella, Cinderella!" The whole dormitory took up the cry. Suddenly they relapsed into quiet. A slim figure appeared on the second floor landing. It was Cinderella.

"I wish you girls would be still," she said. "I've been memorizing the telephone directory and am only as far as 'Zacharias'. If anybody wants me I'll be through in an hour." She went back to her room.

THE YOUNG MAN TOOK A SEAT IN THE PARLOR

The young man took his seat in the parlor. A smile of happy contentment covered his face as he tore the telephone pad apart, sheet by sheet. "She loves me not—she loves me," he repeated over and over again, while the little blue papers floated one by one onto the spotless rug at his feet.

THE END

GOLDILOCKS AND THE THREE BETAS

A long time ago there were three Betas who lived together in a snug fraternity-house of their own, right in between the Alpha Delt and the Chi Psi domiciles. One of them was a Little, Small Wee Beta, and one was a Middle-Sized Beta, and one was a Great, Big, Huge Beta. They were very happy living there together, for it was the summer time and there were no house dues to be paid.

One afternoon while they were out borrowing typewriters at the Maroon Office, a little girl by the name of GOLDILOCKS happened to pass by their house. Her real name was Sadie Thompson, but all of her friends called her GOLDILOCKS because her mouth was full of gold teeth and when she spoke the sun would shine into her open mouth, reflecting a sort of golden lustre onto the otherwise drabness of her tousled locks of hair.

Goldilocks was really only a newcomer to the University of Chicago. She had done her undergraduate work at Lewis Institute from which she Someone had told her that it was the second building from the corner —but neglected to mention from which corner. Thus it was that Goldilocks chose the wrong corner and entered the home of the three Betas.

"My," she thought, as she opened the door, "The graduate students on this campus are anything but tidy." And for three hours Goldilocks engaged herself in tidying up the "Graduate Club-House." It was just turning dusk when she finished the job and walked over to Ida Noyes for supper.

Sometime later the three Betas returned home. The Little, Small, Wee Beta was first to notice the great change in the place's appearance.

Then the Middle-Sized Beta said, "And someone swept all my ashes up from the floor," with a voice that was firmer and angrier.

Then the Great, Big, Huge Beta (great, big, huge people always say things last, for reasons which we will not discuss—they being bigger than we are) said, "And someone has swept all my cigarette ashes from the floor!"

So it was they they went from room to room, observing reclaimed cleanliness at every turn and corner. The prune pits were even gone from underneath the rug in the dining room!

With each new discovery they suffered a loss of heart. The work of three generations of Betas had been swept away in a single afternoon—by an unknown entity.

Finally they came to the bathroom. They stopped short. "My God!" exclaimed the Little, Small, Wee Beta, the Middle Sized Beta, and the Great, Big, Huge Beta, all together, "Clean towels on the rack!"

The Voice of a University

The University of Chicago Press is one of the University's important contributions to an intelligent reading public. Its books, recording and interpreting the progress of knowledge through the years, are known throughout the world. Its imprint is a guaranty of excellence.

Most recently the Goodspeed New Testament, The Panchatantra, and The Nature of the World and of Man have been representing the Press to a large audience.

The Fall of 1927 will bring another new list headed by the American Old Testament another Sanskrit masterpiece in Professor Ryder's fine translation, and more about American writing from that meticulous observer of it, Percy H. Boynton.

The NATION'S BUILDING STONE

Harper Memorial Library, University of Chicago Shepley, Rutan & Coolidge, Architects
Entire exterior and principal parts of interior are of Indiana Limestone

Built of Gray Indiana Limestone

YOU may be called upon some day to participate in a building program; so it will be well to remember that the building stone which has given enduring beauty to your own college buildings is Indiana Limestone. The entire group of the University of Chicago buildings is constructed of this stone. We will gladly send you free an illustrated booklet showing many other examples of fine collegiate architecture built of Indiana Limestone. Address Architects' Service Bureau, Box 308, Indiana Limestone Company, Bedford, Indiana.

Retrospection

Classes —— games —— friendships —— these vignette and blend together to form the complete picture of university life. The picture is ineffaceable —— sentiment carries it through youth —— middle age ——.

In blending, the picture becomes impressionistic, and details fade beside the few high lights which stand out through the years. It is odd that the high lights are not usually the moments of victory, or excitement. In human nature these spots of brilliance recall moments of intense emotion.

One remembers clearly a dance —— just a fleeting moment between the strains of music —— a poetic memory —— just a fragment of university days ——.

The Louis XVI Room is a pleasant place to form such a memory.

HARRY J. FAWCETT,
President
